an examination of how curriculum choices can perpetuate white supremacy and radical strategies for how schools and teacher education programs can disrupt and transform racism in education when racist curriculum goes viral on social media it is typically dismissed as an isolated incident from a bad teacher educator bree picower however holds that racist curriculum isn't an anomaly it's a systemic problem that reflects how whiteness is embedded and reproduced in education in reading writing and racism picower argues that white teachers must reframe their understanding about race in order to advance racial justice and that this must begin in teacher education programs drawing on her experience teaching and developing a program that prepares teachers to focus on social justice and antiracism picower demonstrates how teachers ideology of race consciously or unconsciously shapes how they teach race in the classroom she also examines current examples of racist curricula that have gone viral to demonstrate how whiteness is entrenched in schools and how this reinforces racial hierarchies in the younger generation with a focus on institutional strategies picower shows how racial justice can be built into programs across the teacher education pipeline from admission to induction by examining the who what why and how of racial justice teacher education she provides radical possibilities for transforming how teachers think about and teach about race in their classrooms this volume aims to explore some of the practices conflicts negotiations and struggles at the interplay of bioethics and racism this requires shedding light on the hegemonic power relationships that condemn some population groups to a condition of subjugation suffering and oppression by unpacking notions that have been taken for granted and dismantling rhetorics that are veiled in discourses and rationales pertaining to race and racism we highlight possible ways in which bioethics can operate across disciplinary boundaries and strengthen its connection with equity and social justice which also entails striving for a bioethics in action debates on historical and contemporary racism have recently become the subject of increasing public interest the black lives matter movement as well as the covid 19 pandemic have underlined the importance and urgent necessity of examining racism in society from a multidisciplinary angle the many facets of racism in the past and present also challenge the way we deal with history historical culture in a globalized world rather than focusing on the history of ideas and its discursive development this volume will focus on the practices of actors it examines how and which practices especially practices of comparing are constitutive in the construction of race and manifestations of racism this edited volume brings together interdisciplinary contributions from history sociology political science american studies literary studies and media studies an important focus lies on the social asymmetries created by racialization including inequalities and violence the chapters foreground historical and contemporary practices of racism and discuss their appearance in different epochs and locations racism exists in many different forms in almost every facet of society this very short introduction demystifies the subject and explores its history science and culture shedding light on how racism has evolved since its earliest beginnings and examining the notion of race from a modern genetic viewpoint ali rattansi considers the numerous embodiments of racism from ethnic cleansing and cultural imperialism to discrimination in politics and everyday life
