the present introduction to social psychology represents an attempt at a more synthetic type of treatment of the field than has ordinarily been given it seems to the writer that the time has arrived when schools of social psychology may properly be regarded as obsolete and the subject as a whole may be presented systematically in a sense social psychology overlaps a very large portion of social science and of psychology and education in this respect it is central to all psychological and social science disciplines this fact necessarily renders the content of social psychology voluminous it is no longer possible to treat this subject adequately in small compass the text books which have so far appeared although for the most part excellent from their several viewpoints are nevertheless but partial treatments so notably true is this that there exists a marked controversy as to what properly constitutes social psychology in part i of this volume an attempt has been made to bring this controversy into relief for the purpose of enabling the reader to see the subject as a whole originally the writer intended to publish this volume in five parts to make the synthetic treatment more pronounced but the length of the volume as thus planned was prohibitive and it was decided to change the plan somewhat the synthetic character of the treatment has been retained but the detailed presentation of the process of the development of personality and of self and social consciousness has been reserved for a second volume the present volume treats the subject from the standpoint of the more objective factors which integrate the personality and its responses in a social environment throughout it has been the intention of the writer not only to make the treatment complete in itself but to keep the presentation on such a level that the volume can be used successfully as a second book in social theory following directly upon the introductory course in sociology in departments sociology if the approach to the social sciences is a psychological one the organization of this volume should make it available as an introduction to the first course in sociology economics politics and more advanced courses in history and literature in those departments which care to use it in this way that social psychology will ultimately be regarded as a necessary introduction to the several social sciences and the literatures can scarcely be doubted while the present volume is intended for undergraduate students it is hoped that it may also be used profitably in more advanced courses in combination with the more extended treatment of the subjective aspects of personality development later to be published preface psycinfo database record c 2006 apa all rights reserved seminar paper from the year 2013 in the subject psychology social psychology atlantic international university language english abstract the content of this paper discusses three separate yet in my opinion interlinked aspects of social development we begin with the concept of social identity the development of one's identity almost from birth through adolescence into adulthood the identity as a result of our interactions with those around us creates our self concept and ultimately our self esteem our gender and gender role development adds to our concept of self and determines our concept of who we are in relation to others and the world as we grow our interactions with those around us commencing with the family unit gives credence to our understanding of our self value we learn about people's perceptions of us through their dealings with us as such our self esteem has the potential to promote or hinder healthy relationship development as we move through life from the core family relationships to our peer significant other and spousal relationships the success or failure of our relationships can be linked to our self esteem we learn about our self perception how others perceive us and what kind of responses we expect from those we come into contact with dealing with our self esteem as we move through life suggests that interactions are tainted or coloured by a positive or negative self concept respectively we will see that perception is a key determinant in the generation of frustration when dealing with those around us these frustrations are just one component of factors that may lead to the expression of inappropriate levels of aggression we discuss other causes of aggression and ultimately seek to outline techniques that can assist individuals to create a less aggressive or more appropriate form of anger display as an educator the focus of this paper has pertinence for the school environment but is not limited and moves beyond that into the world of work
