lost in the new west investigates a group of writers john williams cormac mccarthy annie proulx and thomas mcguane who have sought to explore the tensions inherent to the western where the distinctions between old and new myth and reality authenticity and sentimentality are frequently blurred collectively these authors demonstrate a deep seated attachment to the landscape people and values of the west and offer a critical appraisal of the dialogue between the contemporary west and its legacy mark asquith draws attention to the idealistic young men at the center of such works as williams's butcher's crossing 1960 mccarthy's blood meridian 1985 and border trilogy proulx's wyoming stories and mcguane's deadrock novels for each writer these characters struggle to come to terms with the difference between the suspect mythology of the west that shapes their identity and the reality that surrounds them they are in short lost in the new west political consumerism refers to citizens use of boycotting and buycotting as they seek to influence political outcomes within the marketplace rather than through more traditional routes such as voting it is commonly understood as reflective of the progressively converging roles of the citizens and the consumers in late modernity in the aftermath of the recession young people in particular are attempting to harness their individual consumer power to collectively express their political ethical and environmental considerations via their consumer choices the expansion of political consumerism among young people across several advanced liberal democracies has been theorised as a result of a wider cultural shift towards cosmopolitanism and postmaterialist value orientations and therefore as an outcome of affluence however the persistence of political consumerism as a preferred form of political participation among young people who were socialised under conditions of neoliberal austerity during and after the 2008 global financial crisis calls for a re evaluation of these assumptions in particular given the susceptibility of political consumerism to a neoliberal modus operandi that attempts to commercialise citizenship itself the lack of literature problematising its emergence within a neoliberal socioeconomic context is indeed surprising this book addresses this gap by offering a detailed re evaluation of the underlying motivations values and identity orientations of young political consumers in a country of the european north united kingdom as opposed to one of the european south greece it will be of interest to academic specialists working in the areas of political sociology youth studies and consumer studies and scholars interested in political participation and political engagement
