This book examines the contemporary art world in Latin America from an anthropological perspective and recognises the recent reconfiguration of Lima's art scene. Giuliana Borea traces the practices of artists, curators, collectors, art dealers and museums, identifying three key moments in this reconfiguration of contemporary art in Lima: artistic explorations and new curatorial narratives, museum reinforcement and the strengthening of Latin American art networks and of the rise of the art market. In so doing, Borea highlights the different actors that come into play in activating and deactivating directions and imaginations. The book exposes the practices of the local, the global, indigeneity and politics in the arts and reveals that the strengthening of the Lima art scene has fostered the expansion of dominant art views and formats mobilised by transnational elite actors. Featuring analytical chapters interspersed with personal stories, Borea's book presents an in-depth analysis of a specific art scene to open up a new way of understanding contemporary art practices in relation to globalisation, neoliberalism and the city.

The connections between culture and sustainability have been in the public agenda since the 20th century. However, whilst global sustainability programmes at international institutional levels are yet to recognise the role of culture in their sustainability policies, the bid, albeit failed, in the early 2000s to formally add culture to the trilogy of sustainability pillars (economic, social and environmental) mobilised a new discourse for the reframing of cultural policy narrative which in turn urged a reassessment of methods of cultural management reflecting the same concerns among the sector's grassroots. The idea of sustainability and culture working together and their envisioned role in future proofing society and human development captured the imagination of cultural commentators, policy makers and practitioners alike keen to fulfil these principles out there in cultural organizations and events, mega and small, in cities and regions, local and global. The papers in this special issue reflect this appeal. This publication covers a wide selection of issues related to sustainable cultural management which means that it can be recommended to a varied audience. First of all, it can be recommended to managers.
