This book probes for a post-native speakerist future. It explores the nature of English and Japanese native speakerism in the Japanese context and possible grounds on which language teachers could be employed if native speakerism is rejected, i.e. what are the language teachers of the future expected to do and be in practice? It reveals the problems presented by the native speaker model in foreign language education by exploring individual teacher-researcher narratives related to workplace experience and language-based inclusion/exclusion as well as Japanese native speakerism in the teaching of Japanese as a foreign language. It then seeks solutions to the problems by examining the concept of post-native speakerism in relation to multilingual perspectives and globalisation generally with a specific focus on education.
