Extremis is a collection of essays that explore the limits of representation in literature and film. The essays are organized into two main sections: "The Holocaust" and "The Vietnam War". The first section, "The Holocaust", contains essays by Daniel Feldman, Efraim Sicher, and others. The second section, "The Vietnam War", contains essays by John Weal, Todd E. Rasmussen, and others. The essays in this collection explore the ways in which literature and film can represent the extreme events of the Holocaust and the Vietnam War. They also explore the ways in which these events have shaped the way we think about the world and ourselves. The collection is a valuable contribution to the study of literature and film, and it is a must-read for anyone interested in the Holocaust or the Vietnam War.
