it is a story that is conveyed with ancient artifacts and vintage photographs in a way that makes the early discovery of egypt come alive william h peck curator of ancient arts detroit institute of arts the emergence of egyptology and photography took place together in egypt in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries it was a time when the world s most important museum of antiquities was developed when travelers flocked to egypt when dealers and fakers of antiquities flourished and when pashas khedives and sultans ruled a land of exquisite mosques and spectacular monuments from 1850 to 1930 important egyptologists and archaeologists energetically excavated and uncovered temples tombs and works of art which for millennia had been hidden under desert sands at the same time photographers struggled under relentless egyptian sun to overcome technological and physical difficulties to record the new finds as well as the already known monuments in the Nile valley both disciplines promote new knowledge and interest in ancient egypt this book brings that period to life with a wealth of images of sites along the Nile all selected from the collection of early prints stereoviews and postcards housed at the Frank H McClung Museum at the University of Tennessee Knoxville the prints by pioneer photographers illustrate why people came to egypt and what it was that seized their imaginations the book also describes more than fifty ancient objects loaned to the museum to complement its exhibition of the photographs these objects were excavated and documented in or near many of the photographed sites at which the earnest egyptologists and image makers worked elaine a evans tells an absorbing story of the exploration and documentation of an endlessly fascinating ancient culture by serious practitioners of two emerging disciplines egyptology and photography the author elaine altman evans is curator and adjunct assistant professor in the frank h mcclung museum at the university of tennessee knoxville the nineteenth century marked a new era in the history of cairo and egypt as a whole this dissertation examines the implementation of the project of modernizing cairo in the second half of the nineteenth century although egypt at that time was still part of the ottoman empire its ruler khedive ismail 1863 1879 exerted immense efforts to upgrade his capital city and the life of its citizens with the ambition to make cairo and egypt part of the modern world in doing so egypt indeed implemented the project of modernity while looking at the west for inspiration however i argue that this could be only seen as a form of egyptian modernity and not a mere replication of a western model
