under pressure and support from the federal government states have increasingly turned to indicators based on student test scores to evaluate teachers and schools as well as students themselves the focus thus far has been on test scores in those subject areas where there is a sequence of consecutive tests such as in mathematics or english language arts with a focus on grades 4 8 teachers in these subject areas however constitute less than thirty percent of the teacher workforce in a district comparatively little has been written about the measurement of achievement in the other grades and subjects this volume seeks to remedy this imbalance by focusing on the assessment of student achievement in a broad range of grade levels and subject areas with particular attention to their use in the evaluation of teachers and schools in all it addresses traditional end of course tests as well as alternative measures such as portfolios exhibitions and student learning objectives in each case issues related to design and development psychometric considerations and validity challenges are covered from both a generic and a content specific perspective the ncme applications of educational measurement our students aren t learning we re falling behind other countries and many of our college graduates are even functionally illiterate we offer our kids a weak and poorly thought out curriculum too many teachers do not make good use of classroom time and follow lesson plans that are superficial and repetitive almost all state governments define proficiency at low levels of competency and because kids with very uneven skills populate a classroom teachers spend considerable time on review before introducing new material this dismal picture is tempered by the fact that the hard work and dedication of countless teachers and administrators means that many students get an excellent education but it doesn't temper it much as a group even our top students are not as strong as are those in a large majority of other rich countries but it doesn't have to be this way katherine baird an economist starts by clearly spelling out how our educational system is trapped in mediocrity yet she doesn't just expose where we are she identifies the steps to get out of the trap we need to 1 dramatically reform our education's governance structure 2 establish high expectations for all students 3 provide adequate support to meet those expectations and 4 introduce strong incentives for students to work hard in school so they do their part in meeting higher standards clearly it isn't as simple as it sounds but baird carefully examines each factor that has led to the current state in education and then spells out how a combination of policies will weaken the forces that keep our schools mediocre and instead make them ones worth copying we use data on statewide end of course tests in north carolina to examine the relationship between teacher credentials and student achievement at the high school level the availability of test scores in multiple subjects for each student permits us to estimate a model with student fixed effects which helps minimize any bias associated with the non random distribution of teachers and students among classrooms within schools we find compelling evidence that teacher credentials affect student achievement in systematic ways and that the magnitudes are large enough to be policy relevant as a result the uneven distribution of teacher credentials by race and socio economic status of high school students a pattern we also document contributes to achievement gaps in high school
