the trial and death of socrates includes the four platonic dialogues euthyphro apology crito and phaedo

in the euthyphro socrates is awaiting his trial for impiety but before the trial begins plato would like to put the world on their trial and convince them of ignorance in that very matter touching which socrates is accused an incident which may perhaps really have occurred in the family of euthyphro a learned athenian diviner and soothsayer furnishes the occasion of the discussion in what relation the apology of plato stands to the real defence of socrates there are no means of determining it certainly agrees in tone and character with the description of xenophon who says in the memorabilia that socrates might have been acquitted if in any moderate degree he would have conciliated the favour of the dicasts and who informs us in another passage on the testimony of hermogenes the friend of socrates that he had no wish to live and that the divine sign refused to allow him to prepare a defence and also that socrates himself declared this to be unnecessary on the ground that all his life long he had been preparing against that hour the crito seems intended to exhibit the character of socrates in one light only not as the philosopher fulfilling a divine mission and trusting in the will of heaven but simply as the good citizen who having been unjustly condemned is willing to give up his life in obedience to the laws of the state the art of concealing art is nowhere more perfect than in those writings of plato which describe the trial and death of socrates their charm is their simplicity which gives them verisimilitude and yet they touch as if incidentally and because they were suitable to the occasion on some of the deepest truths of philosophy there is nothing in any tragedy ancient or modern nothing in poetry or history with one exception like the last hours of socrates in plato the master could not be more fitly occupied at such a time than in discoursing of immortality nor the disciples more divinely consoled the arguments taken in the spirit and not in the letter are our arguments and socrates by anticipation may be even thought to refute some eccentric notions current in our own age for there are philosophers among ourselves who do not seem to understand how much stronger is the power of intelligence or of the best than of atlas or mechanical force how far the words attributed to socrates were actually uttered by him we forbear to ask for no answer can be given to this question and it is better to resign ourselves to the feeling of a great work than to linger among critical uncertainties
