in this timely book juval portugali ties together ancient archaeology with the present to explore the city as a phenomenon that has been rapidly increasing in power and importance since its earliest emergence he links the walled cities of ancient civilization with modern day borderless cities while providing connections between modern nationalism and postmodern urbanism the house throughout history in every place in the world has been built to provide shelter from the elements the dwellings that have resulted are as different as the people that have built them the social norms that prevailed at the time and place in which they were built and the natural environment that they adapted to studying them now in a comprehensive way allows us to understand the social political economic and religious conditions that existed for their inhabitants they are a three dimensional record of culture twenty four pages of color images along with black and white images through three volumes illustrate the homes of people throughout the world the volumes cover ancient times to the late middle ages the renaissance to the industrial revolution and the post industrial revolution to the present

originally published in england in 1959 this book evolves a new theory of conflict in industrial society by way of illustrating and testing this theory the book provides detailed analyses of various social phenomena the author carries out a full critique of marx in the light of history and modern sociology and discusses the theories of class conflict of james burnham fritz croner and karl renner
