african social development is often explained from outsider perspectives that are mainly european and euro american leaving african indigenous discourses and ways of knowing and doing absent from discussions and debates on knowledge and development this book is intended to present africanist indigenous voices in current debates on economic educational political and social development in africa the authors and contributors to the volume present bold and timely ideas and scholarship for defining africa through its challenges possible policy formations planning and implementation at the local regional and national levels the book also reveals insightful examinations of the hype the myths and the realities of many topics of concern with respect to dominant development discourses and challenges the misconceptions and misrepresentations of indigenous perspectives on knowledge productions and overall social well being or lack thereof the volume brings together researchers who are concerned with comparative education international development and african development research and practice in particular policy makers institutional planners education specialists governmental and non governmental managers and the wider public should all benefit from the contents and analyses of this book revered among peace and social justice activists for his intellect and unwavering commitment to his ideals leon lefson spent 25 years as an administrator at the california departments of social work and education working with phillip and john burton state education superintendent wilson riles he co created an aid program for permanently and totally disabled he co wrote the early childhood education act the depression really had a great impact on him his whole philosophy was that the poor and oppressed had no champion and he wanted to do what he could to ameliorate their circumstances born in 1914 in new york 9th of 10 children born to russian jews who fled religious persecution he assisted philip foner noted historian with a massive chronicle on the u s labor movement what i have done reflects a lifelong commitment he told the bee newspaper in 2005 that will not end until i am no longer on march 4 1865 the day abraham lincoln delivered his second inaugural address reverend doctor george peck put the finishing touches on a collection of his sermons that he intended to send to the president although the politically moderate peck had long opposed slavery he along with many other northern evangelicals was not an abolitionist during the civil war he had come to support emancipation but like lincoln the conflict remained first and foremost about preserving the union believing their devotion to the union was an act of faithfulness to god first and the founding fathers second our country explores how many northern white evangelical protestants sacrificed racial justice on behalf of four million african american slaves and then ex slaves for the union s persistence and continued flourishing as a christian nation by examining civil war era protestantism in terms of the union author grant brodrecht adds to the understanding of northern motivation and the eventual failure of reconstruction to provide a secure basis for african american s equal place in society complementing recent scholarship that gives primacy to the union our country contends that non radical protestants consistently subordinated concern for racial justice for what they perceived to be the greater good mainstream evangelicals did not enter reconstruction with the primary aim of achieving racial justice rather they expected to see the emergence of a speedily restored prosperous and culturally homogenous union a union strengthened by god through the defeat of secession and the removal of slavery as secession s cause brodrecht eloquently addresses this so called proprietary regard for christian america considered within the context of crises surrounding the union s existence and its nature from the civil war to the 1880s including sources from major protestant denominations the book rests on a selection of sermons denominational newspapers and journals autobiographies archival personal papers of several individuals and the published and unpublished papers of abraham lincoln andrew johnson and ulysses s grant the author examines these sources as they address the period s evangelical sense of responsibility for america while keyed to issues of national and presidential politics northern evangelicals love of the union arguably contributed to its preservation and the slaves emancipation but in subsuming the ex slaves to their vision for christian america northern evangelicals contributed to a reconstruction that failed to ensure the ex slaves full freedom and equality as americans
