argumentation is often understood as a coherent set of western theories birthed in athens and developing throughout the roman period the middle ages the enlightenment and renaissance and into the present century ideas have been nuanced developed and revised but still the outline of argumentation theory has been recognizable for centuries or so it has seemed to western scholars the 2019 alta conference on argumentation co sponsored by the national communication association and the american forensic association aimed to question the generality of these intellectual traditions this resulting collection of essays deals with the possibility of having local theories of argument local to a particular time a particular kind of issue a particular place or a particular culture many of the papers argue for reconsidering basic ideas about arguing to represent the uniqueness of some moment or location of discourse other scholars are more comfortable with the western traditions and find them congenial to the analysis of arguments that originate in discernibly distinct circumstances the papers represent different methodologies cover the experiences of different nations at different times examine varying sorts of argumentative events speeches court decisions food choices and sound explore particular personal identities and the issues highlighted by them and have different overall orientations to doing argumentation scholarship considered together the essays do not generate one simple conclusion but they stimulate reflection about the particularity or generality of the experience of arguing and therefore the scope of our theories contemporary discussions in metaphysics epistemology and philosophy of mind are dominated by the presupposition of naturalism arguing against this established convention jim slagle offers a thorough defence of alvin plantinga s evolutionary argument against naturalism ean and in doing so reveals how it shows that evolution and naturalism are incompatible charting the development of plantinga s argument slagle asserts that the probability of our cognitive faculties reliably producing true beliefs is low if ontological naturalism is true and therefore all other beliefs produced by these faculties including naturalism itself are self defeating he critiques other well known epistemological approaches including those of descartes and quine and deftly counters the many objections against the ean to conclude that metaphysical naturalism should be rejected on the grounds of self defeat by situating plantinga s argument within a wider context and showing that science and evolution cannot entail naturalism slagle renders this most common metaphysical view irrational as such the book advocates an important reconsideration of contemporary thought at the intersection of philosophy science and religion in the fifth of his famous list of 23 problems hilbert asked if every topological group which was locally euclidean was in fact a lie group through the work of gleason montgomery zippin yamabe and others this question was solved affirmatively more generally a satisfactory description of the mesoscopic structure of locally compact groups was established subsequently this structure theory was used to prove gromov's theorem on groups of polynomial growth and more recently in the work of hrushovski breuillard green and the author on the structure of approximate groups in this graduate text all of this material is presented in a unified manner starting with the analytic structural theory of real lie groups and lie algebras emphasising the role of one parameter groups and the baker campbell hausdorff formula then presenting a proof of the gleason yamabe structure theorem for locally compact groups emphasising the role of gleason metrics from which the solution to hilbert's fifth problem follows as a corollary after reviewing some model theoretic preliminaries most notably the theory of ultraproducts the combinatorial applications of the gleason yamabe theorem to approximate groups and groups of polynomial growth are then given a large number of relevant exercises and other supplementary material are also provided since the days of montesquieu and jefferson political decentralization has been seen as a force for better government and economic performance it is thought to bring government closer to the people nurture civic virtue protect liberty exploit local information stimulate policy innovation and alleviate ethnic tensions inspired by such arguments and generously funded by the major development agencies countries across the globe have been racing to devolve power to local governments this book re-examines the arguments that underlie the modern faith in decentralization using logical analysis and formal modeling and appealing to numerous examples it shows that most are based on vague intuitions or partial views that do not withstand scrutiny a review of empirical studies of decentralization finds these as inconclusive and mutually contradictory as the theories they set out to test in recent years the united kingdom has become a more and more divided society with inequality between the regions as marked as it has ever been in a landmark analysis of the current state of britain's regional development philip mccann utilises current statistics examines historical trends and makes pertinent international comparisons to assess the state of the nation the uk regional national economic problem brings attention to the highly centralised top down governance structure that the uk deploys and demonstrates that it is less than ideally placed to rectify these inequalities the north south divide in the uk has never been greater and the rising inequalities are evident in almost all aspects of the economy including productivity incomes employment status and wealth whilst the traditional economic dominance of london and its hinterland has continued along with relative resilience in the south west of england and scotland in contrast the midlands the north of england northern ireland and wales lag behind by most measures of prosperity this inequality is greatly limiting national economic performance and the fact that britain has a below average standard of living by european and oecd terms has been ignored the uk's economic and governance inequality is unlikely to be fundamentally rebalanced by the current governance and connectivity trends although this definitive study suggests that some areas of improvement are possible if they are well implemented this pivotal analysis is essential reading for postgraduate students in economics and urban studies as well as researchers and policy makers in local and central government
