this concise text presents a focused well rounded and clear eyed introduction to the concept of human security questioning the utility of traditional national security frameworks in the post cold war era paul battersby and joseph m siracusa argue that we must urgently reconsider the principle of state sovereignty in a global world where threats to humanity are beyond the capacity of any one nation to address through unilateral action the authors highlight circumstances actors and influences beyond the traditional focus on state security especially the role of international organizations and nongovernmental organizations they also emphasize the importance of human rights arguing for the development of an effective intervention capacity to protect individuals from state action as well as other security threats arising from conflict poverty disease and environmental degradation a welcome alternative to state centric approaches to security this balanced book will be a valuable supplement for courses in international and national security

human security refers in its broadest sense to the protection of individuals from harm human security theory and action explores the theory and application of concepts central to this notion of security it examines the conceptual roots of human security connecting its origins to its applications and challenges in war and peacetime with a unique focus on the evolving notion of responsibility for security the text introduces the critical questions and priorities that underpin policies and actions the text is organized around four sections the introduction offers an overview of human security and its basic tenets and historical foundations the second section focuses on human security in armed conflict and post conflict reconstruction discussing such issues as the doctrine of responsibility to protect racial inequality peacekeeping and peace negotiation processes and humanitarian assistance the third section identifies the long term issues that are necessary for a durable human security including human rights food security poverty gender equality health security and environmental sustainability the final section applies the concepts introduced in the book to twenty first century concerns and offers insights on turning theory into action integrated into the text are many case studies to broaden the student s awareness beyond the conflicts and issues that dominate the media by balancing theoretical explanations with concrete illustrative cases both historical and contemporary the text provides intellectually challenging and intrinsically interesting material and offers a unique comprehensive introduction human security in war and peace the second edition of human security theory and action examines the conceptual roots of human security connecting its origins to its application in a time of conflict inequality environmental stress and the aftermath of a global pandemic the past decades have seen enormous changes in our perceptions of security the causes of insecurity and the measures adopted to address them threats of terrorism and the impacts of globalisation and mass migration have shaped our identities politics and world views this volume of essays analyses these shifts in thinking and in particular critically engages with the concept of human security from legal international relations and human rights perspectives contributors consider the special circumstances of non citizens such as refugees migrants and displaced and stateless persons and assess whether conceptually and practically human security helps to address the multiple challenges they face tracing the key evolutions in the development of the concept of human security this book contributes to this new multidimensional conception of security showing its strengths and weaknesses as well as its implications for analysis and action

there is a real security gap in the world today millions of people in regions like the middle east or east and central africa or central asia where new wars are taking place live in daily fear of violence moreover new wars are increasingly intertwined with other global risks the spread of disease vulnerability to natural disasters poverty and homelessness yet our security conceptions drawn from the dominant experience of world war ii and based on the use of conventional military force do not reduce that insecurity rather they make it worse this book is an exploration of this security gap it makes the case for a new approach to security based on a global conversation a public debate among civil society groups and individuals as well as states and international institutions the chapters follow on from kaldors path breaking analysis of the character of new wars in places like the balkans or africa during the 1990s the first four chapters provide a context they cover the experience of humanitarian intervention the nature of american power the new nationalist and religious movements that are associated with globalization and how these various aspects of current security dilemmas have played out in the balkans the last three chapters are more normative dealing with the evolution of the idea of global civil society the relevance of just war theory in a global era and the concept of human security and what it might mean to implement such a concept this book will appeal to all those interested in issues of peace and conflict in particular to students of politics and international relations a hard headed analysis of the role of the un in translating ideas about human security from theory into practice this book provides seven studies that address major issues such as the human rights and human security nexus gender aspects of human security ethical and environmental challenges human security as a basic element for a policy framework the human security agenda developed by the human security network and debates on human security within the united nations building on its variety of themes the book takes account of the complexity and scope of the concept of human security and proposes thereby to refresh and enrich discussion contributors are internationally renowned experts in the different subfields of human security offers an overview of current trends and insights on what is at stake if the international community is to maintain the momentum created a few years ago when the concept of human security emerged designed to help both newcomers and experts in the field of human security readers will find inspiration in the new developments of a concept that aims to shape practical action to meet the needs of the most vulnerable in 1994 the united nations development program undp coined the term human security in the seminal undp human development report this report approached security for the first time from a holistic perspective security would no longer be viewed from a purely military perspective but rather it would encapsulate economic food health environmental personal community and political security although the concept of human security accords a higher status to individual interests rather than to governmental interests human security discourses have continually emphasized the central role of states as providers of human security this volume challenges this paradigm and highlights the part played by non state actors in threatening human security as well as in rescuing or providing relief to those whose human security is endangered the book does so from a legal perspective international law being one of the instruments used to realize human security as well as being a material source or guiding principle for the formation of human security enhancing policies in particular the book critically discusses how various non state actors such as armed opposition groups multinational corporations private military security companies non governmental organizations and national human rights institutions participate in the construction of such policies and how they are held legally accountable for their adverse impact on human security series international law vol 12

the world turned topsy turvy after covid 19 pandemic the whole equation and thrust of global politics and economics is now at a new verge the main question is now how we can secure human race and humanity this is the main thrust of the book changing dimensions of human security in contemporary world this book is an outcome of collective research work done by erudite scholars from different parts of world like usa russia japan australia romania nigeri Nepal bangladesh and india who has come together in search of new trends of human security they touched upon different milieu as well as dimensions of human security and pandemic in contemporary world scenario in thirty two essays forty seven authors collectively explored situation of human security in several domains including international politics law economy labour force sustainable development education gender and many more i believe that this collection of essays can become a benchmark for the future as well as spur new research agendas and projects that will put the region into a much needed conversation on the recent trends of human security in contemporary world this book will try to reimagining this changing dimension of human security in the pandemic situation the goal of this book is to improve the standards of the international community of academicians researchers scholars and scientists by exposing them to the latest trends developments and challenges in the field the volume is essential reading for social scientists bureaucrats and non governmental political activists interested in human security it will also appeal to public policy analysts and scholars who have yet to adopt the contribution of critical security and development studies in the analysis of different dimensions of human security today the number of armed conflicts worldwide has dropped the number of refugees has declined and human rights violations are reported to be less frequent than during the 1990s does this mean that the world has become more peaceful not necessarily it is a fact that 18 percent of the world's population still lives on less than us $1 per day atrocious inter state conflicts are raging across the world and many problems do not stop at national borders most conflicts have an economic dimension it is also a fact that more and more conflicts are solved through mediation and negotiation it is therefore important to highlight the influence of companies regarding conflict the link between economic factors and mediation and the role of companies in mediation processes a stable environment is an essential requirement for business activity human security helps to create stability poverty under development and discrimination on the other hand create a breeding ground for violent conflict the areas of activity for political actors seeking to promote human security generally as well as promote human security through companies are different however the primary goals are the same stability and security as the prerequisites for economic success and human security to achieve these goals it is necessary to assume responsibility and to look for new forms of cooperation given the nature of today's world order and of the existing challenges a multi layered cooperation approach between politics and civil society and above all between politics and business should be developed economic actors must realize that they have an influence on contemporary political events and thus have a responsibility for the creation of stability political actors in turn need to start accepting greater responsibility and acknowledge that foreign trade policy is not neutral and that they therefore need to find the correct balance between economic social and ecological interests the private sector besides maximizing profits can make a major contribution towards improving human security although the business case for complying with human rights and for contributing to peace promotion has been made the connection between ethical behavior and financial performance needs to be established although this field has not yet been explored in sufficient depth studies show that there is no negative correlation between company responsibility and economic performance the choice should be clear when confronted with the question shall we simply make profits or shall we make profits and create additional social benefits in this book it is explained that despite a current drop in the number of deaths terrorism should still be considered a serious and widespread problem however the responses to this phenomenon are often more problematic from a long term perspective with the human rights framework under serious pressure this edited volume offers a timely important and critical in depth analysis of human dignity and human security challenges in the lead up and in the responses to current forms of terrorism it aims to map how human dignity and human security can be secured and how law can constitute a source of trust at a time when europe and the rest of the world continue to be plagued by terrorism the authors are both established names and upcoming talent in this fastchanging and exciting field of law they thoroughly analyse a variety of topical subjects in more conceptual chapters for example calling for the humanisation of the security discourse and in highly practical contributions in which for instance the kafkaesque situation in which rendition and torture victim abu Zubaydah still finds himself today is considered this book which focuses on but is not limited to the situation in western countries aims to inspire not only academics through further theorisation on the sometimes elusive but important concepts of human dignity and human security but also practitioners working in the field of countering terrorism it will hopefully convince them even more that following a human rights approach will be indispensable in securing human dignity and human security for all even or in fact especially in times of terrorism christophe paulussen is a senior researcher in the research department of the t m c asser instituut in the hague the netherlands and martin scheinin is professor of international law and human rights in the department of law of the european university institute eui in florence italy the book asserts that human security derives from the experience and expectation of human well being which depends on four essential conditions a life sustaining environment the meeting of essential physical needs respect for the identity and dignity of persons and groups protection from avoidable harm and expectations of remedy from them the book demonstrates their integral relationship to human security patriarchy being the germinal paradigm from which most major human institutions such as the state the economy organised religions and social relations have evolved the book argues that fundamental inequalities must be challenged for the sake of equality and security the fundamental point raised is that expectation of human well being is a continuing cause of armed conflict which constitutes a threat to peace and survival of all humanity and human security cannot exist within a militarised security system the editors of the book bring together 14 essays which critically examine militarised security in order to find human security pathways show ways in which to refute the dominant paradigm indicate a clear gender analysis that challenges the current system and suggests alternatives to militarised security with a mix of female and male feminist scholar activists as contributors the book makes an important contribution to a new discourse on human security globalization difference and human security seeks to advance critical human security studies by re framing the concept of human security in terms of the thematic of difference drawing together a wide range of contributors the volume is framed among others around the following key questions what are the silences and erasures of advancing a critical human security alternative without making recognition of difference its central plank how do we rethink the complex interplay of human security and difference in distinct and varied spatial and cultural settings produced by global forces what is the nexus between human security and the broader field of global development what new challenges to human security and international relations are produced with the rise of the post liberal or post secular subject in what ways releasing human security from identification with the territorial state helps reconceptualize culture how does human security serve as a subspecies of modern humanitarian thought or the latter reinforce imperial imaginaries and the structures of order and morality is the pursuit of indigenous rights fundamentally counterpoised to the pursuit of human security what difference it might make to take the doings and beings of communities of subsistence rather than basic needs wealth seeking individuals as a point of departure in critical human security studies how does reconstruction bind post war and post disaster states and societies into the global capitalist democratic political structure this book examines how national security strategies relate to an emerging common european or global vision of security and to human security ideas human security and national security are often regarded as competing and mutually antagonistic the former was proposed and has been operationalised in ways which represent a paradigm shift away from state centric approaches and the dominance of national security perspectives this has led to human security being associated with a broadening of the security agenda to encompass not only physical security the use of force and military capabilities but also the provision of material well being and dignity to vulnerable communities this edited volume seeks to identify key concepts and themes in the national discourse of several european countries addressing security at a meta narrative and conceptual level illustrating the changes taking place in approaches to security and in particular mapping moves away from a paradigm of national security to one which might be called human security it also enables an assessment of whether national security is currently converging at either european or global levels this book will be of much interest to students of human security european politics discourse analysis war and conflict studies and ir security studies in general adopting an interdisciplinary perspective freedom from fear freedom from want is a brief introduction to human security conflict and development the book analyzes such key human security issues as climate change crimes against humanity humanitarian intervention international law poverty terrorism and transnational crime among others the authors encourage readers to critically assess emerging threats while evaluating potential mechanisms of deterrence such as conflict resolution economic development diplomacy peacekeeping international law and restorative justice concise yet comprehensive freedom from fear freedom from want is an ideal text for human security courses in africa various conditions pose pervasive threats to human security addressing these threats and promoting human security therefore constitute formidable challenges as the paradigmatic shift in the discourse on and practice of human security has led to a change in the normative emphasis from sovereignty and non intervention to responsibility and international humanitarian and human rights norms questions arise not only as to the relationship between human security and human rights but also as to the contribution of the human rights system in addressing human security threats and promoting human freedom what tools does the african human rights system have at its disposal that can be used in the promotion of human security on the continent what are the roles of the african commission and the ahrc in this regard what are the potentials and the challenges how best can these human rights bodies be employed to optimise their contributions to addressing the pervasive human security threats and to promoting the well being of individuals and communities on the continent this monograph investigates these and similar issues including the basic one of the interface between human rights and human security the concept of human security is a new approach to security that focuses on the individual human being and provides policy alternatives to the traditional state centred view which considers the state to be the only and ultimate referent of security formally introduced into the united nations system in 1994 the concept's intellectual roots draw from international humanitarian law human rights and human development and since its introduction human security has been progressively integrated into the international security discourse mainstreaming human security policies potential paints a comprehensive picture of the relevance of the concept of human security in practice in a time of changing security paradigms and a challenging international environment this volume looks at the practical implications of mainstreaming human security it focuses on the potential problems and policies of human security in peace operations and crisis management operations of the united nations and of the european union topics addressed by the contributors include mainstreaming human rights and human security in peace and crisis management in general and the role of human security in the eu's common security and defence policy security sector reform restorative responses to human rights violations by peacemakers human security in serbia and in african peace operations as well as proposals for human security training the contributions to the book focus equally on mainstreaming human security in the un and in the eu context the global issues discussed and conclusions drawn are of relevance for the future of security addressed by peace and crisis management operations all over the world the covid 19 global pandemic has triggered health insecurity food insecurity and economic insecurity among many others in south asia it has profound impact on every sector of human activities ranging from the economic to environment there is a need for a critical study of the implications of the covid 19 pandemic for human security in order to fathom the emerging theoretical and policy issues in the region hence the book provides an understanding of the consequences of the covid 19 global pandemic for human security in south asia this intellectually stimulating book provides a critical analysis and insights on this contemporary challenge to policy makers health professionals academics students researchers ngo workers working with health human security and anyone interested in health and human security in south asia the book covers major human security areas i e health security food security economic security and environment issue the role of regional cooperation and global health governance is also covered in the domain of covid 19 this book fills the existing knowledge gap on the human security in south asia in general and linking with covid 19 in particular from the perspective of policy the insights of the study would guide the policy makers in south asia in reframing their security policies emphasising human security issues and challenges finally this book contributes to the evolving debate and discourse on the impact of the covid 19 on the south asian region from a human security perspective
