beijing's global media offensive is a major analysis of how china is attempting to build a media and information superpower around the world and to use it to impact many countries societies media markets politics and economies joshua kurlantzick traces the ways in which china is trying to build an information and influence superpower and critically examines the new conventional wisdom that beijing has been extremely successful in these efforts in some ways he argues china has built the foundations of a global media and information superpower including global tv networks social media platforms global radio networks apps and the backbones of wireless and wired networking but has yet to reap many gains from its efforts and actually has alienated many other states china's rise as an aid provider in africa has caught global attention with china's activity being viewed as the projection of soft power of a neo colonialist kind in an international relations context this book which focuses on china's education aid government scholarships training confucius institutes dispatched teachers etc reveals a much more complicated picture it outlines how the divide between the chinese ministry of commerce and the ministry of education hinders china s soft power projection how much of china s aid is bound up with an education for economic growth outlook mirroring china s own recent experiences of economic development and how china s aid prioritized to reflect the commercial sector s interests is out of step with most international development aid which is dominated by education agendas and the campaigns of international organizations and traditional donors this leaves china easily exposed to the charge of neo colonialism this situation also reveals insufficient knowledge production of china and in south south cooperation substantial production of southern knowledge should recognize the international development cooperation architecture as an open system by which both traditional donors and southern countries transform zhang argues that war in korea offered mao yet another opportunity to expand and consolidate his political power at home while at the same time uniting the chinese proletariat against yankee imperialism and proving to the international community that china had arrived as a major world power fifty years after the korean conflict what is a forgotten war for some americans is an aching memory for china with over a million casualties out of the three million soldiers sent into battle that war looms as large for the people s republic of china prc barely a year old when north korea invaded the south as world war ii does for most other countries it was the first international war fought by the chinese communist regime to halt counterrevolution it was also a war that the chinese fully expected to win by virtue of not only superiority of numbers but also their soldiers superior political quality this book presents a mosaic of memoirs by key chinese military commanders from that war drawing not only on their personal papers but also on still classified archives and on chinese language sources unavailable in english it offers an uncensored behind the scenes story of the communist campaign from the decision to intervene through the truce negotiations that discloses new information on such facets of the war as strategy and tactics use of propaganda and mobilization of the chinese population it also reveals the generals concerns about the possible use of nuclear force and the alleged use of biological and chemical weapons by the united states the book contains a wealth of new materials on the chinese intervention including combat operations logistics political control field command and communications among those whose recollections are recorded then acting chief of staff nie rongzhen reveals how party leadership decided on intervention commander in chief peng dehuai provides personal accounts of major battles and communications with mao and general yang dezhi shares secrets of chinese military strategy and tactics discussing how the army orchestrated each battle to contend with the better equipped un forces the volume also features an updated short history of the prc s conduct of the war based on chinese sources plus rare photos from chinese archives that put readers behind the lines from the chinese side mao s generals remember korea demonstrates that the prc continues to draw military diplomatic and strategic lessons from the war it fought fifty years ago with the world s most powerful military force it offers valuable insight into the chinese way of war and the military mind of mao that will be a rich resource for asian and military scholars
