w r d fairbairn 1889 1964 challenged the dominance of freud s drive theory with a psychoanalytic theory based on the internalization of human relationships fairbairn assumed that the unconscious develops in childhood and contains dissociated memories of parental neglect insensitivity and outright abuse that are impossible the children to tolerate consciously in fairbairn s model these dissociated memories protect developing children from recognizing how badly they are being treated and allow them to remain attached even to physically abusive parents attachment is paramount in fairbairn s model as he recognized that children are absolutely and unconditionally dependent on their parents kidnapped children who remain attached to their abusive captors despite opportunities to escape illustrate this intense dependency even into adolescence at the heart of fairbairn s model is a structural theory that organizes actual relational events into three self and object pairs one conscious pair the central ego which relates exclusively to the ideal object in the external world and two mostly unconscious pairs the child s antilibidinal ego which relates exclusively to the rejecting parts of the object and the child s libidinal ego which relates exclusively to the exciting parts of the object the two dissociated self and object pairs remain in the unconscious but can emerge and suddenly take over the individual s central ego when they emerge the other is misperceived as either an exciting or a rejecting object thus turning these internal structures into a source of transferences and reenactments fairbairn's central defense mechanism splitting is the fast shift from central ego dominance to either the libidinal ego or the antilibidinal ego a near perfect model of the borderline personality disorder in this book david celani reviews fairbairn's five foundational papers and outlines their application in the clinical setting he discusses the four unconscious structures and offers the clinician concrete suggestions on how to recognize and respond to them effectively in the heat of the clinical interview incorporating decades of experience into his analysis celani emphasizes the internalization of the therapist as a new good object and devotes entire sections to the treatment of histrionic obsessive and borderline personality disorders bringing together leading scholars from asia and the west this book investigates how the dynamics of china's rise in world politics contributes to theory building in international relations in the book demonstrates how the complex and transformative nature of china's advancement is also a point of departure for theoretical innovation and reflection in ir more broadly in doing so the volume builds a strong case for a genuinely global and post western ir it contends that non western countries should not only be considered potential sources of knowledge production but also original and legitimate focuses of ir theorizing in their own right beginning with the basic premise that public relations can best be understood as a specialized type of communication the contributors to this volume establish public relations as a vital and viable realm for communication research and theory development through the application of communication theories they attempt to explain and predict public relations practices and then use these practices to develop communication theories their discussions fall into three distinct categories metatheory theory and examples of applications of theories an ideal volume for professionals and students in communication journalism and related fields
