scientific study from the year 2017 in the subject tourism miscellaneous university of kelaniya course economic modelling language english abstract measuring the contribution of tourism to a national economy has always been a frustrating exercise tourism does not have specific products it represents the sum of expenditure by travellers for wide range of products it is not possible to identify tourism as a single industry in the national accounts its value to the economy is not readily revealed as a result of the absence of tourism in official economic statistics there is often an on going battle to establish tourism credibility as an economic activity and generator of income in the economy as a result a significant volume of tourism research over the past few decades have focussed on the development and use of a variety of economic techniques aimed at quantifying the effects of tourism on an economy in conventional literature has proven that computable general equilibrium cge modelling is the best applied tool addressing and analysing tourism related issues in an economy the paper provided a complete description of the theoretical structure of the cge tourism including all equations and variables by using relevant excerpts for different blocks of equations in the tablo file associated with the gempack software used to operationalise the model the incorporation of tourism using the dummy sector approach into an orani type cge model as an extension and can be considered as the main contribution of this study to the cge modelling literature for an economy this is a clear departure from the traditional methods used for tourism modelling in an economy this model can be used to simulate the economic impact of the tourism boom in an economy cultural heritage which includes archaeology is recognized as serving an increasingly important role in European societal development but what exactly is the relevance of archaeology to present day citizens? Imprint of Action investigates the sociocultural impact of archaeology through public activities. These activities provide an ideal setting for research as they represent a structured point of encounter between the public and archaeological heritage. In analysing them, aspects of people's connections to the past are revealed. As such, this research forms an integral part of the research project 2013-2018 as a basis for analysis. Survey data from three large-scale case studies (Domunder, Netherlands; You & Archaeology, Cross Europe; and Invisible Monuments, Greece) was used. The analysis and interpretation of the case studies is based on a newly created methodological framework which finds its roots in the broader culture and arts sector. Results show that activities encourage participation and interaction which engenders sociocultural impacts on participants, most notably in knowledge increase, skill development, social relations, and happiness. Imprint of Action is the first large-scale study focussing entirely on sociocultural impact in archaeology and as such is explorative in nature. It provides unique insights into the workings of interaction and participation in archaeological events and openly shares qualitative and quantitative research data with the expanding field. In doing so, Imprint of Action lays the foundations for further analysis of the societal impact of both large and small-scale heritage projects and identifies the incontestable values of archaeological heritage to the public.

An insider's look at the SEC and the changes needed to strengthen the U.S. financial system in 2008. Americans were reeling from the devastating financial crisis that caused the Great Recession. There were searing questions about how the crisis was allowed to happen and calls for immediate reform from Capitol Hill. The news media and the general public. Multiple scandals sent real fear through the investing community and brought unprecedented heat on the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). There was little doubt that the SEC had to fix rules that permitted bad behavior, shake off decades of complacency, and enforce existing laws. Wall Street lawyer Norm Champ spent nearly 20 years dealing with the SEC on behalf of his clients and as an industry representative working to educate the agency about hedge funds. Believing he could help reform the deeply flawed agency, Champ left his career in the private sector and joined the SEC as director of the Division of Investment Management. He became a key player in stabilizing trillions of dollars of investor capital while reenergizing the SEC's culture and management. In Going Public, Champ presents a rare insider's look at how the SEC operates and explains exactly how the agency impacts the overall economic health of the country. He examines the inner workings of hedge funds, economic policy and politics, investing and inefficient and frustrating federal agencies, engrossing and important. This book offers critical recommendations for policy changes that will create healthy, free functioning markets and help Americans better prepare for the inevitable next crisis.
