Â Â Â in this rare first hand account of the private world of a cairo harem during the years before egypt declared independence in 1922 shaarawi recalls her childhood and early adult life in the seclusion of an upper class egyptian household including her marriage at age thirteen her subsequent separation from her husband gave her time for an extended formal education as well as an unexpected taste of independence and a critical understanding of the price of confinement shaarawi s feminist activism grew along with her involvement in egypt s nationalist struggle and culminated in 1923 in a daring act of defiance when she publicly removed her veil in a cairo railroad station

cynthia nelson brings to life a bold and gifted egyptian of the mid twentieth century who helped define what it means to be a modern arab woman doria shafik 1908 1975 an egyptian feminist poet publisher and political activist participated in one of her country s most explosive periods of social and political transformation during the 40s she burst onto the public stage in egypt openly challenging every social cultural and legal barrier that she viewed as oppressive to the full equality of women as the founder of the daughters of the Nile union in 1948 she catalyzed a movement that fought for suffrage and set up programs to combat illiteracy provide economic opportunities for lower class urban women and raise the consciousness of middle class university students she also founded and edited two prominent women s journals wrote books in both french and arabic lectured throughout the world married and raised two children for a decade she ignited the imagination of the press where she was variously described as the perfumed leader a danger to the muslim nation a traitor to the revolution and the only man in egypt then in 1957 following her hunger strike in protest against the populist regime of gamal abdul nasser she was placed under house arrest within months her magazines folded her name was officially banned from the press and she entered a long period of seclusion that ended with her suicide in 1975 with the cooperation of shafik s daughters who made available her three impressionistic unpublished and sometimes contradictory memoirs nelson has uncovered shafik s story and brings the life and achievements of this remarkable woman to a western audience brilliantly re creates the untold story of doria shafik the most impressive exponent of liberal egyptian feminism magically the delicately sketched background gives the reader the emergence and evolution of egyptian feminism is an integral but previously untold part of the history of modern egypt drawing upon a wide range of women s sources memoirs letters essays journalistic articles fiction treatises and extensive oral histories margot badran shows how egyptian women assumed agency and in so doing subverted and refigured the conventional patriarchal order unsettling a common claim that feminism is western and dismantling the alleged opposition between feminism and islam the book demonstrates how the egyptian feminist movement in the first half of this century both advanced the nationalist cause and worked within the parameters of islam qasim amin 1863 1908 an egyptian lawyer is best known for his advocacy of women s emancipation in egypt through a number of works including the liberation of women and the new woman in the first of these important books in 1899 he started from the premise that the liberation of women was an essential prerequisite for the liberation of egyptian society from foreign domination and used arguments based on islam to call for an improvement in the status of women in doing so he promoted the debate on women in egypt from a side issue to a major national concern but he also subjected himself to severe criticism from the khedival palace as well as from religious leaders journalists and writers in response he wrote the new woman published in 1900 in which he defended his position and took some of his ideas further in the new woman amin relies less on arguments based on the quran and sayings of the prophet and more openly espouses a western model of development although published a century ago these two books continue to be a source of controversy and debate in the arab world and remain key works for understanding the arab feminist movement the liberation of women and the new woman appear here in english translation for the first time in one volume the women s movement in egypt has been heralded as improving the lives of women in egypt and paving the way for women throughout the arab world as seen through the eyes of the university educated elite and middle class this is no doubt true yet such a narrow view fails to account for the diversity of women's experience in changing perspectives. Cathlyn Mariscotti provides a critical re-examination of the women's movement framing it within the broader economic and political movements occurring in Egypt and abroad. Her nuanced account unveils a rich, differentiated and complex history of Egyptian women drawing upon published journal reports and newspaper articles. Mariscotti explores the tensions between upper class harem women and lower class women rather than a unified movement. The author describes the way in which elite feminism created a concept of womanhood that fed into the nationalist cultural ideal, one that was not necessarily progressive for all Egyptian women. Demonstrating active resistance, the non-elite women constructed a model of feminism in line with their own class position and political interests. Mariscotti's reveals the tension in the movement through the profiles of women from this class struggle. A unique synthesized form of feminism emerged infused with the politics and culture of Egypt at that time. Humanizing her analysis, the author profiles two outspoken and prominent women who symbolize the conflict: the university educated and wealthy Huda Sha'rawi and Munira Thabit who represented the working class women. The first book to emphasize the class conflict among women, this book makes an invaluable contribution to the fields of women's studies and Middle East studies.

In 1923 when the pioneer of feminist activism Huda Sha'rawi removed her veil in Cairo's train station, she created what became a landmark and much copied gesture for feminists throughout Egypt and the Middle East and cemented her status as one of the most important feminists in twentieth century Egypt. In casting off the veil, her granddaughter Sania Sharawi Lanfranchi uses never before seen letters and photographs to explore the life and thought of Egypt's first feminist as she campaigned against British occupation as well as striving to improve conditions for women throughout the country. From her birth into a wealthy and powerful family, her early years spent in a harem to her iconic status as one of the most influential feminists in Middle Eastern history, this is a fascinating portrait of a determined and groundbreaking woman. A rich and important story which will captivate everyone with an interest in Egyptian feminist or colonial history.
