the methodology of the study of the history of political thought is an area of study which has occupied my interests for nearly a decade i was introduced to the subject in university college swansea my teachers there provided me with an excellent grounding in political studies i am particularly indebted to bruce haddock peter nicholson and w h greenleaf professor greenleaf was kind enough to supply me with a copy of his bibliography and copies of two of his unpublished papers i continued to pursue my interest in methodology at the london school of economics and political science i am indebted to ken minogue and robert orr who taught me there my greatest debt is to dr joseph femia ofthe university of liverpool who devoted a great deal of time to considering the arguments presented here his criticisms and suggestions for improvement proved to be invaluable i would also like to thank alan ryan for his general comments and encouraging advice it would be remiss of me if i neglected to express my gratitude to dewi beynon who was my first teacher of politics the research for this project was carried out in the following places the british library of political science london the sidney jones library university of liverpool the national library of scotland edinburgh the main library university of edinburgh the arts and social science library university college cardiff and the bodleian library oxford since the 1990s sub saharan africa has experienced unprecedeted attempts at reforming teacher and student classroom practices with a learner centred pedagogy regarded as an effective antidote to the prevalence of teacher centred didactic classroom practices attempts at reform have been going on all over the continent in fact learner centred pedagogy has been described as one of the most pervasive educational ideas in contemporary sub saharan africa and elsewhere research has revealed that the major attempts have largely failed mainly because teachers have not been able to adopt instructional innovations to technical problems this failure is also related to lack of resources and poor teacher training programmes which lead to poor teacher quality among others this book attempts to explain why pedagogical change has not occurred in spite of the much energy and resources that have been committed to such reforms the book also takes us inside what the author calls the socio cultural world of african classrooms to help us understand the reasons teachers dominate classroom life and rely disproportionately on didactic methods of teaching its conceptual analyses capture the best of both the sociology and the anthropology of education in contexts of poverty as well as the politics of education the book concludes that a socio cultural approach should be the basis for developing culturally responsive indigenous pedagogies though these may or may not turn out to be in any way akin to constructivist learner centred pedagogies
