this collection of essays concentrates on arab american writer and artist etel adnan up until now there has been no single volume dedicated to her work despite adnan s increasing recognition and acclaim across the united states europe and the middle east the essays fall into two sections in the first the essays respond to the range of vision and experience in adnan s writing and art through analysis and appreciation the second section focuses on responses to and interpretations of sitt marie rose adnan s well known novel about the lebanese war as a whole the writings in this work seek to provide a comprehensive look at adnan s literary and artistic accomplishments through analysis and close readings that place her texts within wider literary contexts

asha nadkarni contends that whenever feminists lay claim to citizenship based on women s biological ability to reproduce the nation they are participating in a eugenic project sanctioning reproduction by some and prohibiting it by others employing a wide range of sources from the united states and india nadkarni shows how the exclusionary impulse of eugenics is embedded within the terms of nationalist feminism nadkarni reveals connections between u s and indian nationalist feminisms from the late nineteenth century through the 1970s demonstrating that both call for feminist citizenship centered on the reproductive body as the origin of the nation she juxtaposes u s and indian feminists and antifeminists in provocative and productive ways charlotte perkins gilman s utopian novels regard eugenic reproduction as a vital form of national production sarojini naidu's political speeches and poetry posit liberated indian women as active agents of a nationalist and feminist modernity predating that of the west and katherine mayo's 1927 Mother India warns white u.s. women that indian reproduction is a world menace in addition nadkarni traces the refashioning of the icon mother india first in mehboob khan's 1957 film Mother India and kamala markandaya's 1954 novel Nectar in a Sieve and later in indira gandhi's self-fashioning as mother india during the emergency from 1975 to 1977 by uncovering an understudied history of feminist interactivity between the united states and india eugenic feminism brings new depth both to our understanding of the complicated relationship between the two nations and to contemporary feminism on august 7 1998 bombs exploded at two united states embassies in east africa american anthropologist susan hirsch and her husband jamal a kenyan were among the thousands of victims and jamal died from there hirsch went on to face devastating grief with the help of friends and families on two continents observing the mourning rituals of her husband's community to honor him when the alleged bombers were captured and sent to new york to stand trial she witnessed firsthand the attempts of america's criminal justice system to handle terrorism through the law in the moment of greatest calamity is her story a tale told on many levels personal anthropological legal and finally political the book's central chapters describe hirsch's experience of the bombing trials in a manhattan federal court in 2001 including a behind the scenes look at the investigation leading up to the trial encounters with some of the fbi's leading terrorism investigators and many moments of drama from the proceedings themselves hirsch reveals the inner conflict that results from her opposition to the death penalty and concludes that the trial was both flawed and indispensable hirsch's story of this tragedy and its legal aftermath comes to life through and is enhanced by her skills as a social scientist her unique viewpoint makes it unlike any other story about terrorism
