this is the first full biography from childhood of the eminent british architect sir herbert baker written with the full cooperation of his family and with access to his archive and private papers it gives an account of his remarkable life as the leading architect to the british empire from london through the commemoration of the empire s war dead in france via south africa and australia to india he celebrated the might of an empire that once ruled a quarter of the world he was an intimate friend of many of most fascinating men of his age including Cecil Rhodes, Lawrence of Arabia, John Buchan, Jan Smuts and of course his fellow architect Sir Edwin Lutyens. After a Victorian architectural apprenticeship in London and on to becoming the most prolific architect of his age in South Africa, he built the new imperial capital of New Delhi in India with Lutyens. Before returning to London, these two built or rebuilt such landmark buildings as the Bank of England, South Africa House, India House, Rhodes House and the stands for Lord's Cricket Ground as well as numerous churches and private houses.

The definitive biography of Laurie Baker. Laurie Baker has worked in India for over forty years and is renowned for being one of the very few architects in the world to have designed and built buildings as diverse as fishermen's huts, computer institutes, auditoriums, film studios and tourist centres. His distinctive brand of architecture usually moulded around local building traditions, especially those of Kerala. His adopted home state in South India is instantly identifiable and has unsurprisingly revolutionized traditional concepts of architecture in India. Baker's architecture is responsive, uses local materials and lays stress on low cost design. This biography of Laurie Baker, like his work, is direct, simple and comprehensive, further embellished with sketches, plans, photographs and some of Baker's own writings. The book offers the professional architect's view of the life, methods and thoughts of an unorthodox genius.

Architect Sir Herbert Baker left an indelible mark on South Africa and much of the British Empire in the first half of the 20th century. This is the first full biography from childhood and was written with full cooperation from his family and with access to his archive and private papers. After a Victorian architectural apprenticeship in London, Sir Herbert Baker went on to become the most prolific architect of his age in South Africa, where he designed numerous public buildings, churches, schools and private houses, including the Union Buildings, St George's Cathedral and Groote Schuur. Thereafter, he worked in India, Kenya and England, where among many other projects, he designed South Africa House. He was an intimate friend of many fascinating men of his age, including Cecil Rhodes, T. E. Lawrence, John Buchan and Jan Smuts. Lavishly illustrated, this biography offers a compelling picture of an architect whose buildings contribute greatly to South Africa's rich history.

Making Things reviews the collective portfolio of Jay Baker Architects since the establishment of his practice in 1991 by presenting 20 projects across varied design platforms. Sixteen of these projects feature houses commissioned over a twenty-five year period and are complimented and contrasted with an additional four projects that were self initiated ranging from the design of a toy to a public park uniting these discernably diverse projects is a common denominator baker s work contributes to his belief that in order to make things well it is necessary to serve the integrity of an idea ensuring greater incisiveness in response to design challenges the body of work presented in making things extols the virtue of creating fit particularly when working in multifarious contexts opening the book is an appraisal of baker s comprised life s work by esteemed historian stephen fox
