ethical dilemmas and decision making are a persistent feature of the everyday operations of animal shelters and animal protection organizations these organizations frequently face difficult decisions about how to treat the animals in their care decisions that are made all the more difficult by limited funding material resources and human labor moreover animal protection organizations must also determine how to act within and toward the wider social and institutional environment in which non human animals are routinely exploited the first section of the ethics of animal shelters contains practical recommendations developed by ethicists in response to the ethical challenges identified by employees of the montreal society for the prevention of cruelty to animals these challenges arise across the organization s activities including its internal structure shelter operations public campaigns and advocacy work dealing with the public animal agriculture and governmental agencies and their work with feral animals the second section offers philosophical analyses of the ethical challenges unique to animal shelters issues explored include the killing of shelter animals shelter animals diets medical decision making procedures adoption policies and the role shelters might play in transforming social attitudes and norms more and more animals find care in animal shelters every year the greatest challenges are to provide appropriate care for a wide variety of animal species and to cope with the organization s ever increasing demands this richly illustrated standard work now in its 2nd updated and revised edition helps to safely navigate the various pitfalls of animal shelter management the central topics from planning an animal shelter to construction and operation species specific husbandry and legal regulations to shelter management are described and explained in detail thanks to his many years of experience the author beneficially combines theoretical knowledge with easy to understand practical guidance clearly structured and carefully researched the animal shelter guide has established itself as an indispensable reference work the focus of this thesis is the application of data envelopment analysis to understand and evaluate the performance of diverse animal welfare organizations across the united states the results include identification of the most efficient animal welfare organizations at least among those that post statistics on their operations and a discussion of various partnerships that may improve the performance of the more inefficient organizations the humane society of the united states estimates that there are 4000 6000 independently run animal shelters across the united states with an estimated 6 8 million companion animals entering them each year unfortunately more than half of these animals are euthanized the methods shared in this research illustrate how data envelopment analysis may help shelters improve these statistics through evaluation and cooperation data envelopment analysis dea is based on the principle that the efficiency of an organization depends on its ability to transform its inputs into the desired outputs the result of a dea model is a single measure that summarizes the relative efficiency of each decision making unit dmU when compared with similar organizations the dea linear program defines an efficiency frontier with the most efficient animal shelters that are put into the model that envelops the other dmUs individual efficiency scores are calculated by determining how close each dmU is to reaching the frontier the results shared in this research focus on the performance of 15 animal shelters lack of standardized data regarding individual animal shelter performance limited the ability to review a larger number of shelters and provide more robust results various programs are in place within the united states to improve the collection and availability of individual shelter performance specifically the asilomar accords provide a strong framework for doing this and could significantly reduce euthanasia of companion animals if more shelters would adopt the practice of collecting and reporting their data in this format it is demonstrated in this research that combining performance data with financial data within the data envelopment analysis technique can be powerful in helping shelters identify how to better deliver results the addition of data from other organizations will make the results even more robust and useful for each shelter involved
