in recent years a number of new testament scholars engaged in academic historical jesus studies have concluded that such scholarship cannot yield secure and illuminating conclusions about its subject arguing that the search for a historically authentic jesus has run aground jesus skepticism and the problem of history brings together a stellar lineup of new testament scholars who contend that historical jesus scholarship is far from dead these scholars all find value in using the tools of contemporary historical methods in the study of jesus and christian origins while the skeptical use of criteria to fashion a jesus contrary to the one portrayed in the gospels is methodologically unsound and theologically unacceptable these criteria properly formulated and applied yield positive results that support the gospel accounts and the historical narrative in acts this book presents a nuanced and vitally needed alternative to the skeptical extremes of revisionist jesus scholarship that on the one hand uses historical methods to call into question the jesus of the gospels and on the other denies the possibility of using historical methods to learn about jesus the primary focus of this book is to demonstrate how hebrews represents in view of its historical and religious context human fidelity to god thus the basic thesis is twofold first with regard to the divine human relationship in the ancient mediterranean world the belief in the reciprocity rationale was one primary dynamic for establishing fidelity to a relationship and has been applied by some scholars such as david desilva to hebrews as the way to understand its strategy for creating perseverance a major problem with the application of this dynamic is that a common optimistic anthropological assumption is associated with the various reciprocity systems in the ancient world both jewish and pagan this assumption is required if reciprocity is to be effective for establishing ongoing fidelity second there was however a middle judaic stream that can be traced from the period of the exile which held to a pessimistic anthropology this anthropological assumption crippled the perceived success of reciprocity to secure fidelity thus the solution to god's people's inability to remain faithful was an act of god that transformed the human condition and enabled faithfulness to the relationship the argument of this book is that hebrews with its emphasis upon the inauguration of the new covenant by jesus high priestly ministry belongs to this latter stream of thought in understanding how fidelity is secured between god and his people hebrews thus implicitly rejects the rationale of reciprocity for fidelity the implications of this offers a fresh perspective on the soteriology of hebrews
