nu erth is a creature birthed all alone on a world that he knows nothing about given a quest by a strange voice to name every creature and thing that nu erth sees nu erth takes off on adventures to do the quest given to him by this strange voice from a sphere of light along with the quest nu erth is also given the ability to use knowledge of any and all magic by the strange voice yet nu erth must discover what magic is first oh and did we forget to mention that nu erth is the only hatchling dragon of his kind on the new world where he is birthed being the only hatchling dragon of his kind on this new world what awaits nu erth as he begins his adventures to do the quest given to him by the strange voice from the sphere of light does nu erth make any friends along his adventures does nu erth meet other hatchling dragons or even dragons of his own kind only nu erth adventures can tell you that and what awaits our hatchling dragon

do you believe in magic this familiar question suggests magic is easily recognized but unreal in magic's translations margaret j wiener argues that such views are shaped by historical power struggles especially in europe's relations with the wider world focusing on nineteenth and twentieth century dutch interactions with indonesians wiener reveals how colonial agents framed unfamiliar practices practitioners and objects as magic rendering distinct phenomena fundamentally alike and advancing colonizing projects that deemed magic antithetical to reason and reality while colonial authorities including ethnologists mobilized the concept of magic to differentiate europeans from indonesians nature from culture reason from superstition and fact from fetish their efforts produced unexpected outcomes some indonesian artifacts and acts not only retained their power but invaded european experiences as anthropologists were among the key translators of magic throughout the world wiener intersperses accounts of magic's translations in the indies with reflections on anthropology's ongoing engagement with the concept she demonstrates that magic became an object of expert knowledge political control and popular fascination rather than a self evident category or relic of naïve belief two opposing views of the future in the middle ages dominate recent historical scholarship according to one opinion medieval societies were expecting the near end of the world and therefore had no concept of the future according to the other opinion the expectation of the near end created a drive to change the world for the better and thus for innovation close inspection of the history of prognostication reveals the continuous attempts and multifold methods to recognize and interpret god's will the prodigies of nature and the patterns of time that proves on the one hand the constant human uncertainty facing the contingencies of the future on the other hand it demonstrates the firm belief during the middle ages in a future which could be shaped and even manipulated the handbook provides the first overview of current historical research on medieval prognostication it considers the entangled influences and transmissions between christian jewish islamic and non monotheistic societies during the period from a wide range of perspectives an international team of 63 renowned authors from about a dozen different academic disciplines contributed to this comprehensive overview

jean m bartunek the 2001 2002 president of the academy of management has written an excellent scholarly book on organizational and educational change using a joint insider outsider approach this book tells the story of a change agent group a group of teachers that was creating change in its organization setting a network of independent schools the group's focus was on empowerment and professional development for teachers in the network the book describes virtually everything that happened in the group over its first seven years and summarizes what happened during its final two years it explores the identity work and evolution of change agent groups in organizations with particular emphasis on teachers and educational change through the book's extensive quotations and narrative account the reader is enabled to enter into the world of the teacher group studied over the course of its nine year history in addition the book includes analysis of the underlying processes involved in the change focusing on the change agent group's identity, its actions and relationships with stakeholders as they jointly evolved over time and their impacts on the vitality of the change effort. It contributes a new understanding of fundamental processes involved in organizational change, especially when viewed from the perspective of change agents. In addition, the book provides practical implications for change agents, specifically change agents in schools. As such, this account will be useful for graduate students and researchers in organizational change, educational leadership, and professional development. It is a part of Lawrence Erlbaum Associates' growing series in organization management.

Covering figures ranging from Catherine Monvoisin to Vlad the Impaler and describing murders committed in ancient aristocracies to those attributed to vampires, witches, and werewolves, this book documents the historic reality of serial murder. The majority of serial murder studies support the consensus that serial murder is essentially an American crime, a flawed assumption as the United States has existed for less than 250 years. What is far more likely is that the perverse urge to repeatedly and intentionally kill has existed throughout human history and that a substantial percentage of serial murders throughout ancient times, the middle ages, and the pre-modern era were attributed to imaginative surrogate explanations: dragons, demons, vampires, werewolves, and witches. Legends, monsters, or serial murderers: the real story behind an ancient crime dispels the interrelated misconceptions that serial murder is an American crime and a relatively recent phenomenon, making the novel argument that serial murder is a historic reality, an unrecognized fact in ancient times. Noted serial murderers such as the Roman Locuta, the poisoner Gilles de Rais of France, a prolific serial killer of children, Andres Bichel of Bavaria, and Chinese aristocratic serial killer Tzu Hsi are spotlighted. This book provides a unique perspective that integrates supernatural interpretations of serial killing with the history of true crime, reanimating mythic entities of horror stories and presenting them as real criminals.

Tied to a ten-part television series, this is an investigation of ancient myths and legends, mystical wonders of the world, and ancient and mysterious beliefs that have intrigued mankind for centuries.
