into the wild meets walden a lyrical memoir for nature lovers and for anyone who has wondered what it would be like to disconnect from our hyper connected culture and seek more meaningful connections after losing vision in one eye and becoming estranged from his family and friends a young man spent two years searching for identity in self imposed solitude in the backwoods of northern vermont where he embarked on a project of stripping away facades and all social ties and learned to face himself on a clear may afternoon at the end of his junior year at harvard howard axelrod played a pick up game of basketball in a skirmish for a loose ball a boy s finger hooked behind axelrod s eyeball and left him permanently blinded in his right eye a week later he returned to the same dorm room but to a different world a world where nothing looked solid where the distance between how people saw him and how he saw had widened into a gulf desperate for a sense of orientation he could trust he retreated to a jerry rigged house in the vermont woods where he lived without a computer or television and largely without human contact for two years he needed to find a more lasting sense of meaning away from society s pressures and rush named one of the best books of the year by slate chicago tribune entropy magazine and named one of the top 10 memoirs by library journal marking the debut of a gifted new writer the bookmaker teems with humanity empathy humor and insight at the heart of michael j agovino s powerful layered memoir is his family s struggle for success in 1970s 80s and 90s new york city and his father s gambling which brought them to exhilarating highs and crushing lows he vividly brings to life the bronx a place of texture and nuance of resignation but also of triumph the son of a buttoned up union man who moonlighted as a gentleman bookmaker and gambler agovino grew up in the bronx s co op city the largest and most ambitious state sponsored housing development in u s history when it opened it landed on the front page of the new york times and in time magazine which described it as relentlessly ugly agovino s italian american father was determined not to let his modest income and lack of a college education define him and was dogged in his pursuit of the finer things in life when the point spreads were on his side he brought his family to places he only dreamed about in his favorite books and films the uffizi the tate the rijksmuseum st peter s chartres teotihuacán with bad luck came shouting matches unpaid bills and eviction notices the bookmaker is both a bold loving portrait of a family and their metropolis and an intimate look into some of the most turbulent decades of new york city in elegant and soaring prose it transcends the personal to illuminate the ways in which class distinctions shaped america in the last half of the twentieth century there were holes in sam mills s life when she was growing up times when her dad was just absent for reasons she didn t understand as she grew older she began to make up stories about the periods when he wasn t around that he d been abducted spirited away and held captive by a mysterious tribe who lived at the bottom of the garden the truth that he suffers from a rare form of paranoid schizophrenia and was hospitalised intermittently slowly came into focus and that focus became pin sharp in 2012 when sam s mother died and sam was left as his primary carer in this powerful poignant memoir sam triangulates her own experience with the stories of two other carers one she admires and one on some days she fears she might become leonard woolf husband to virginia and f scott fitzgerald husband to zelda and a man whose personality made him ill equipped in a great many ways to be a carer for his troubled wife a mesmerising blend of literary biography and memoir the fragments of my father is a compelling and moving account of what it means to be a carer
