written in the form of a diary kept by the cameroonian houseboy toundi this book looks at toundi s innocence and his awe of the white world of his masters writing in french in the 1950s ferdinand léopold oyono 1929 2010 had only a brief literary career but his anticolonialist novels are considered classics of twentieth century african literature like oyono s houseboy also available from waveland press this novel fiercely satirizes the false pretenses of european colonial rule in africa meka a village elder has always been loyal to the white man it is with pride that he first hears he is to receive a medal while waiting for the ceremony however meka s pride gives way to skepticism at the same time his wife has realized that the medal is being given to her husband as compensation for the sacrifices they have made the events following the ceremony confirm meka s new estimation of the white man both subtle and oftentimes humorous this beautifully told story lays bare the hollowness of the mission in africa it fuels opportunities for discussing colonial politics around class and race as well as for exploring indigenous cameroon life and values scientific essay from the year 2015 in the subject literature africa university of botswana language english abstract this study intends to compare the portrayal of conflict in ferdinand oyono s houseboy and nadine gordimer s july s people specifically it looks at how the black servant is forced to balance the loyalty he has for the white employer and for his african roots the analysis of houseboy will focus on how conflict is represented between whites and blacks how it can satirically have a positive influence on others and lastly how conflict among the blacks can be very destructive houseboy shows how conflict can be prompted by stereotypes how it can be a shield from other pressing concerns and even how conflict itself can provide an outlet for humour the analysis of july s people will on the other hand focus on how people can live together under pretences that they are at peace with one another when in actual fact they are not how the black servant can be in conflict with people of other races or their traditions as well as how that servant can be in conflict with fate or destiny in conclusion it will be shown how houseboy is more explicit in portraying conflict than july s people due to the events that happened in the two texts an argument can be made therefore if conflict experienced by black servants during the colonial period was more in the open as opposed to that of apartheid south africa

vol 1 spring 1970 include a bibliography of american doctoral dissertations on african literature compiled by nancy j schmidt independence generated the promise of a better future for the ethnically diverse populations of african countries but during the past thirty years economic and political crises have called into question the legitimacy of speaking about nationhood in africa richard bjornson argues here that a national consciousness can indeed be seen in the shared systems of references made possible by the emergence of literate cultures by tracing the evolution of literate culture in cameroon from the colonial period to the present and by examining a broad spectrum of writing in its social political economic and cultural contexts bjornson shows how the concepts of freedom and identity have become the dominant concerns of the country s writers and he relates those themes to the history of cameroon s as a complex modern state bjornson also analyzes in detail works by writers such as mongo beti ferdinand oyono marcien towa guillaume oyono mbia rené philombe and francis bebey an illustrated encyclopedia containing over 9000 articles on history literature art and music geography myths and legends mathematics science hobbies sports and other topics compilation of essays comprising a comparison of social movements of resistance to the dominant role of europe in political leadership in africa south of sahara gives historical and theoretical insights into the workings of african politics and covers political problems the role of uk the role of germany the role of france the emergence of interest groups and political parties issues of sovereignty and diplomacy etc bibliography pp 1197 to 1213
