it was in the third world that the ambitions and fears of the two cold war superpowers were played out v korea vietnam egypt and syria afghanistan in their bizarre way these were carefully controlled wars carefully controlled in the sense that neither great power allowed itself to become directly engaged in a hot war with the other equally neither allowed itself to go for broke in a grand sweep across the third world in fear of provoking that final confrontation but this fear of direct confrontation was never as rigidly controlled as one would think again and again events veered towards a clash between eagle and bear the authors of this book make real such terrifying possibilities as korea or the 67 war dragging in both superpowers they predict the consequences of the united states or the soviet union attempting radical strategies in vietnam or in a divided germany either to follow the british success in malaya or to invade the north they imagine the invasion of cuba when the delicate signals failed to find a way out of the missile crisis and bring to life a scenario in which the soviet union knocks the great game off the board by using afghanistan as base to bring down pakistan and achieve its warm water port on the indian ocean cold war hot vividly brings to life these and many other alternate scenarios taking the reader behind the scenes at these momentous moments in history in showing what could have happened the authors show how precarious the cold war peace actually was and how little it would have taken to tip the balance into world war three

based in sociologist zygmunt bauman's theory of liquid modernity this volume describes and critiques key aspects and practices of liquid education education as market driven consumption short life span of useful knowledge overabundance of information through a systematic comparison with ancient greek paideia and medieval university education producing a sweeping analysis of the history and philosophy of education for the purpose of understanding current higher education positing a more holistic alternative model in which students are embedded in a learning community that is itself embedded in a larger society if liquid modernity has left a vacuum where according to bauman the pilot's cabin is empty this volume argues that no structure is better positioned to fill this vacuum than the university and outlines a renewed vision of social transformation through higher education

Kafiristan or the land of the infidels was a region of eastern Afghanistan where the inhabitants had retained their traditional pagan culture and religion and rejected conversion to Islam. The Kafiristan of the Hindu Kush is a detailed ethnographic account of the kafirs written by George Scott Robertson, 1852-1916, a British administrator in India. With the approval of the Government of India, Robertson made a preliminary visit to Kafiristan in October 1889 and then lived among the kafirs for almost a year from October 1890 to September 1891. Robertson describes his journey from Chitral in present-day Pakistan to Kafiristan and the difficulties he encountered in traveling about the country and in gaining information about the kafir culture and religion. The latter he writes is a somewhat low form of idolatry with an admixture of ancestor worship and some traces of fire worship. Also, the gods and goddesses are numerous and of varying degrees of importance or popularity. Robertson describes religious practices and ceremonies, the tribal and clan structure of kafir society, the role of slavery, the different villages in the region, and everyday life and social customs, including dress, diet, festivals, sport, the role of women in society, and much else that he observed first-hand. The book is illustrated with drawings, and it concludes with a large fold-out topographical map which shows the author's route in Kafiristan in 1896. The ruler of Afghanistan, Amir Abd al Rahman Khan, reigned 1880-1901, conquered the area and brought it under Afghan control. The kafirs became Muslims, and in 1906 the region was renamed Nuristan, meaning the land of light, a reference to the enlightenment brought by Islam.
