after the 1965 immigration and nationality act loosened discriminatory restrictions people from northeast asian countries such as south korea taiwan japan and eventually china immigrated to the united states in large numbers highly skilled asian immigrants flocked to professional managerial occupations especially in science technology engineering and math asian american literature is now overwhelmingly defined by this generation s children who often struggled with parental and social expectations that they would pursue lucrative careers on their way to becoming writers christopher t fan offers a new way to understand asian american fiction through the lens of the class and race formations that shaped its authors both in the united states and in northeast asia in readings of writers including ted chiang chang rae

lee ken liu ling ma ruth ozeki kathy wang and charles yu he examines how asian american fiction maps the immigrant narrative of intergenerational conflict onto the two cultures conflict between the arts and sciences fan argues that the self consciousness found in these writers works is a legacy of japanese and american modernization projects that emphasized technical and scientific skills in service of rapid industrialization he considers asian american writers attraction to science fiction the figure of the engineer and notions of the postracial modernization theory and time travel and what happens when the dream of a stable professional identity encounters the realities of deprofessionalization and proletarianization through a transnational and historical materialist approach this groundbreaking book illuminates what makes texts and authors asian american the poetics of science fiction uniquely uses the science of linguistics to explore the literary universe of science fiction developing arguments about specific texts and movements throughout the twentieth century the book is a readable discussion of this most popular of genres it also uses the extreme conditions offered by science fiction to develop new insights into the language of the literary context the discussion ranges from a detailed investigation of new words and metaphors to the exploration of new worlds from pulp science fiction to the genre s literary masterpieces its special effects and poetic expression speculations and extrapolations throughout the book engage the reader in thought experiments and discussion points with selected further reading making it a useful source book for classroom and seminar frank herbert s dune is one of the most well known science fiction novels of all time and it is often revered alongside time honored classics like the lord of the rings unlike tolkien s work the dune series has received remarkably little academic attention this collection includes fourteen new essays from various academic disciplines including philosophy political science disability studies islamic theology environmental studies and byzantine history that examine all six of herbert s dune books as a compendium it asserts that a multidisciplinary approach to the texts can lead to fresh discoveries also included in this collection are an introduction by tim o reilly who authored one of the first critical appraisals of herbert s writings in 1981 and a comprehensive bibliography of essential primary and secondary sources metafictionality has become the cornerstone of the stylistic zeitgeist of science fiction fantasy and horror in the twenty first century this trend reaches back to literary experiments first undertaken and developed during the science fictional new wave this vein of experimentalist and frequently stylistically complex science fiction from the mid and late twentieth century however often does not look much like the parallel experiments found in postmodern fiction in the 1960s such texts frequently embed their self referential fireworks in genre conventions and tropes masking the extent of their experimentalism such worlds however ask difficult questions of the genre itself what world is being portrayed and is it even possible how alien can science fiction really be what even is a science fiction world how do we understand a science fiction world what part does the reader play in the creation of the science fiction world using narratological and stylistic analyses of kurt vonnegut samuel r delany ursula leguin joanna russ and brian aldiss this book provides answers to the question of how science fiction is so perfectly formed to ask these kinds of questions of its own world and fictional praxis and explores how these texts allow those worlds to wrap back on themselves in an endless prismatic spiral of self awareness this wide ranging collection of essays re opens the connection between science fiction and the increasingly science fictional world kevin alexander boon reminds us of the degree to which the epistemology of science fiction infects modern political discourse károly pintő c r explores the narrative structures of utopian estrangement and tamás bátyai and brian attebery take us deeper into the cultural exchanges between science fiction and the literary and political worlds in the second half donald morse nicholas ruddick and Á0 00va federmayer look at the way in which science fiction has tackled major ethical issues while amy novak and kálmán matolcsy consider memory and evolution as cultural batteries the book ends with important discussions of east german and hungarian science fiction by usch kiauschi and donald morse respectively i envisage that the book will find a market both among academics and as a recommended text to undergraduates as it offers interesting essays on important readers the tendency for science fiction to be offered as a literature class to science majors is not usually considered but this book would be particularly appropriate for such a market dr farah mendelsohn middlesex university
