this book is available as open access through the bloomsbury open access programme and is available on bloomsburycollections.com cultural science introduces a new way of thinking about culture adopting an evolutionary and systems approach the authors argue that culture is the population wide source of newness and innovation it faces the future not the past its chief characteristic is the formation of groups or demes organised and productive subpopulation demos demes are the means for creating distributing and growing knowledge however such groups are competitive and knowledge systems are adversarial starting from a rereading of darwinian evolutionary theory the book utilises multidisciplinary resources raymond williams s culture is ordinary approach evolutionary science e g mark pagel and herbert gintis semiotics yuri lotman and economic theory from schumpeter to mccloskey successive chapters argue that culture and knowledge need to be understood from an externalist linked brains perspective rather than through the lens of individual behaviour demes are created by culture especially storytelling which in turn constitutes both politics and economics the clash of systems including demes is productive of newness meaningfulness and successful reproduction of culture contemporary urban culture and citizenship can best be explained by investigating how culture is used and how newness and innovation emerge from unstable and contested boundaries between different meaning systems the evolution of culture is a process of technologically enabled demic concentration of knowledge across overlapping meaning systems or semiospheres a process where the number of demes accessible to any individual has increased at an accelerating rate resulting in new problems of scale and coordination for cultural science to address the book argues for interdisciplinary consilience linking evolutionary and complexity theory in the natural sciences economics and anthropology in the social sciences and cultural communication and media studies in the humanities and creative arts it describes what is needed for a new modern synthesis for the cultural sciences it combines analytical and historical methods to provide a framework for a general reconceptualisation of the theory of culture one that is focused not on its political or customary aspects but rather its evolutionary significance as a generator of newness and innovation
