this book guides faculty in introducing digital media into teaching offering strategies and activities it addresses the need for innovative technology applications in higher education and shares successful teaching experiences it includes clear examples and descriptions to help faculty incorporate technology meaningfully this volume focuses on the challenges the electronic classroom offers to both faculty and students the authors include many pragmatic suggestions about what to consider in design of technologically supported instruction and also and perhaps more startling some serious caveats about how quickly this instructional innovation is spreading faculty considering the big first step would be well advised to think seriously about the insights included in this issue the series editors in the current debates on sea migration there is a dearth of works drawing on the rule of law this important book addresses this failing considering the question from that conceptual framework it is able to broaden the sometimes fragmented and incomplete perspective of existing scholarship the book takes as its central case study the experience of italy exploring the legal issues at play there and its institutional practices and policies from here its focus broadens out to the wider eu experience looking in particular at those problems common to southern eu states such as failures and delays in assisting migrants in distress at sea and contested legal grounds and practices concerning interceptions at sea it combines both legal and empirical data charting both the black letter law and how it operates in practice in a field as complex as this this clarity is key it allows lawyers political scientists and policymakers to truly engage with the challenges sea migration poses today
