this dystopian science fiction classic details the hallucinatory hunt for a white haired girl through a frozen post apocalyptic landscape a haunting story of sexual assault and climate catastrophe decades ahead of its time the new yorker a strange and compelling classic of dystopian and climate fiction one that with foreboding and deep compassion maps the psyche and the terrain of dislocation jeff vandermeer anticipating climate fiction and the new weird literary genre while garnering fans from doris lessing and j g ballard to china miéville and patti smith since it was first published in 1967 this fantasia about predatory male sexual behavior during an apocalyptic climate catastrophe reads as though author anna kavan had seen the future ice is slowly covering the entire globe as the glacial tide creeps forward the fabric of society begins to break down through this chaotic landscape a nameless narrator hunts for the white haired girl he once loved or perhaps wishes to annihilate battling a powerful enemy known only as the warden he travels through nightmarish and ever shifting scenes where the object of his obsession remains constantly just out of reach she is guarded by the warden and by a cruel older woman who wishes her ill but each time the narrator seems poised to rescue her the encroaching ice wreaks violence on her fragile body or his own base nature sends him hurtling onward in his kaleidoscopic pursuit again and again the girl appears but inevitably she eludes him this dystopian classic the last book anna kavan published in her lifetime renders her apocalyptic vision of environmental devastation and possessive violence in unforgettable propulsive oneiric prose

kavan s childhood was marked by an emotionally distant mother and a father who killed himself when she was fourteen twice divorced and deeply depressed she coped by taking heroin daily for forty years despite her addiction and several suicide att predominantly watercolor but including oil pen and ink and goache provide considerable insight into her work and her life as a whole this collection represents nearly all of the extant material relating to anna kavan this book shows that a distinct form of technological madness emerged within modernist culture transforming much of the period s experimental fiction this book scrutinizes a range of relatively overlooked post wwii british women writers who sought to demonstrate that narrative prose fiction offered rich possibilities for aesthetic innovation what unites all the primary authors in this volume is a commitment to challenging the tenets of british mimetic realism as a literary and historical phenomenon this collection reassesses how british female novelists operated in relation to transnational vanguard networking clusters debates and tendencies both political and artistic the chapters collected in this volume enquire for example whether there is something fundamentally different or politically dissident about female experimental procedures and perspectives this book also investigates the processes of canon formation asking why in one way or another these authors have been sidelined or misconstrued by recent scholarship ultimately it seeks to refine a new research archive on mid century british fiction by female novelists at least as diverse as recent and longer established work in the domain of modernist studies explores the trailblazing work of the british literary avant garde of the 1960s this collection showcases the liveliness of british avant garde fiction of the 1960s which is diverse in its aesthetic practices and sometimes divided in its politics it brings together a selection of original research led essays on more than a dozen avant garde british writers of the 1960s revealing this to be a crucial and crucially overlooked period of british literary history via detailed readings of authors such as ann quin b s johnson alexander trocchi maureen duffy alan burns christine brooke rose and many others the contributors reveal the diversity of material produced in this period and trace the complex relations of influence and indebtedness between the 60s avant garde earlier modernisms and later postmodern writing the volume shows that the 1960s is an even more vibrant period of literary experiment in Britain than might previously have been supposed and that the avant garde fiction produced then rewards our renewed attention to it key features provides much needed critical analyses of the work of 60s avant garde writers offers focused essays each presents one author in their cultural critical historical contexts by experts in the field recovers a lost decade in British literature and thus fills a vital gap in literary history between late modernism and early postmodernism responds to burgeoning critical and popular interest in authors such as Christine Brooke-Rose, Ann Quin and B.S. Johnson and to a widespread interest in experimental and innovative writing more generally a 1935 novel on an Englishwoman by the name of Anna Kavan who leaves her husband in Burma then a British colony in London a wealthy man proposes to keep her as a mistress but she spurns him and moves to France she falls in love with a divorced Englishman but he is not interested in marriage and in the end Anna returns to her husband a classic later novel by Anna Kavan a largely autobiographical account of an unhappy childhood this daring synthesis of memoir and surrealist experimentation chronicles the subject's gradual withdrawal from the daylight world of received reality brief flashes of daily experience from childhood adolescence and youth are described in what is defined as nighttime language a heightened decorative prose that frees these events from their gloomy associations the novel suggests we have all spoken this dialect in childhood and in our dreams but these thoughts can only be sharpened or decoded by contemplation in the dark revealing that side of life which is never seen by the waking eye but which dreams and drugs can suddenly emphasize this startling discovery illustrates how these nighttime illuminations reveal the narrator's joy for the living world
