this is the first full length study of british women s instrumental chamber music in the early twentieth century laura seddon

argues that the Cobbett competitions instigated by Walter Willson Cobbett in 1905 and the formation of the Society of Women Musicians in 1911 contributed to the explosion of instrumental music written by women in this period and highlighted women's place in British musical society in the years leading up to and during the First World War. Seddon investigates the relationship between Cobbett, the Society of Women Musicians and women composers themselves. The book's six case studies of Adela Maddison (1866–1929), Ethel Smyth (1858–1944), Morfydd Owen (1891–1918), Ethel Barns (1880–1948), Alice Verne Brett (1868–1958) and Susan Spain Dunk (1880–1962) offer valuable insight into the women's musical education and compositional careers. Seddon's discussion of their chamber works for differing instrumental combinations includes an exploration of formal procedures, an issue much discussed by contemporary sources. The individual composers' reactions to the debate instigated by the Society of Women Musicians on the future of women's music is considered in relation to their lives, careers and the chamber music itself. As the composers in this study were not a cohesive group creatively or ideologically, the book draws on primary sources as well as the writings of contemporary commentators to assess the legacy of the chamber works produced.

Is music a language of the emotions? How do recorded pop songs differ from works created for live performance? Is John Cage's silent piece 4'33" music? Stephen Davies's new book collects some of his most important papers on central topics in the philosophy of music as well as perennial questions. Davies addresses contemporary controversies including the impact of modern technology on the presentation and reception of both new and old musical works. These essays, two of them new and previously unpublished, are self-standing but thematically connected and will be of great interest to philosophers, aestheticians and to theorists of music and art.
