nicole kronzer's The Roof Over Our Heads is a charming ya novel about a family who puts on an immersive interactive play to save their historical home. finn lives in a family of theater lovers: his older brothers are both actors and one of his moms is an actor and the other one is a director. they even live in an enormous historic mansion owned by the beauregard minnesota's largest regional theater. finn is desperate to be an actor too despite the fact that he can never seem to remember his lines when a new artistic director threatens to sell the jorgensen house and kick his family out of the only home he's ever known. his family puts on a show: an immersive 1890s experience unlike anything else out there. but will it be too much for his mom lula who is recovering from cancer? will finn connect with his crush and deal with his long time rival jade while saving the house? finn's acting career: funny, warm, and full of victorian hijinks. this is a novel for anyone looking for a place to belong: expect nonstop action, rounded characters, secrets, schemes, and sweet affirmations of unconditional family love. booklist starred review: a theatrical spectacle that will entertain stage and historical home fans alike. school library journal surveying the disparate expert literatures which normally take no account of each other, kegan brings them together to reveal for the first time what these many demands have in common. our frequent frustration in trying to meet these complex and often conflicting claims results he shows us from a mismatch between the way we ordinarily know the world and the way we are unwittingly expected to understand it. In Over Our Heads provides us entirely fresh perspectives on a number of cultural controversies: the abstinence vs safe sex debate, the diversity movement, communication across genders, the meaning of postmodernism. what emerges in these pages is a theory of evolving ways of knowing that allows us to view adult development much as we view child development as an open ended process born of the dynamic interaction of cultural demands and emerging mental capabilities.

cultural disorientation has become pandemic: children act like adults and adults act like children. mother earth is worshiped but motherhood is despised. free speech may get you free room and
