through cross disciplinary explorations of and engagements with nature as a forming part of architecture this volume sheds light on the concepts of both nature and architecture nature is examined in a raw intermediary state where it is noticeable as nature despite but at the same time through man's effort at creating form this is done by approaching nature from the perspective of architecture understood not only as concrete buildings but as a fundamental human way both of being in and relating to the world man finds and forms places where life may take place consequently architecture may be understood as ranging from the simple mark on the ground and primitive enclosure to the contemporary megalopolis nature inheres in many aesthetic forms of expression in architecture however nature emerges with a particular power and clarity which makes architecture a raw kind of art even though other forms of art as well as aesthetic phenomena outside the arts are addressed the analogy to architecture will be evident and important thus by using the concept of raw as a focal point this book provides new approaches to architecture in a broad sense as well as other aesthetic and artistic practices and will be of interest to readers from different fields of the arts and humanities spanning from philosophy and theology to history of art architecture and music atlas of material worlds is a highly designed narrative atlas illustrating the agency of nonliving materials with unique ubiquitous and often hidden influence on our daily lives employing new materialism as a jumping off point it examines the increasingly blurry lines between the organic and inorganic engaging the following questions what roles do nonliving materials play might a closer examination of those roles reveal an undeniable agency we have long overlooked or disregarded if so does this material agency change our understanding of the social structures ecologies economies cosmologies technologies and landscapes that surround us and perhaps most importantly why does material agency matter this is the story of the world's driest nonpolar desert pink flamingos and cerulean blue lithium ponds industrial shipping logistics pudding like jiggling substrates and monuments of mud galactic bodies radioactive sheep and the yellowcake of uranium put simply this book dares readers to see the world anew from material up atlas of material worlds offers this new relationship to our host environment in a time of mounting crises accelerating climate change ballooning socioeconomic inequality and rising toxic nationalism uniquely telling materialist stories for practitioners and students in landscape architecture and other built environment disciplines the nature of concepts examines a central issue for all the main disciplines in cognitive science how the human mind creates and passes on to other human minds a concept an excellent cross disciplinary collection with contributors including steven pinker andy clarke and henry plotkin the literature on rural america to the extent that it exists has largely been written by urban based scholars perpetuating out of date notions and stereotypes or by those who see little difference between rural and agricultural concerns as a result the real rural america remains much misunderstood neglected or ignored by scholars and policymakers alike in response emery castle offers the changing american countryside a volume that will forever change how we look at this important subject castle brings together the writings of eminent scholars from several disciplines and varying backgrounds to take a fresh and comprehensive look at the forgotten hinterlands these authors examine the role of non metropolitan people and places in the economic life of our nation and cover such diverse issues as poverty industry the environment education family social problems ethnicity race religion gender government public policy and regional diversity the authors are especially effective in demonstrating why rural america is so much more than just agriculture it is in fact highly diverse complex and interdependent with urban america and the international market place most major rural problems they contend simply cannot be effectively addressed in isolation from their urban and international connections to do so is misguided and even hazardous when one fourth of our population and ninety seven per cent of our land area is rural together these writings not only provide a new and more realistic view of rural life and public policy but also suggest how the field of rural studies can greatly enrich our understanding of national life
