in peace operations seen from below beatrice pouligny argues that much of what is being rebuilt in societies emerging from war or in some cases what is continuing to be destroyed often lies in the ordinary daily lives of both local populations and the staff of un missions these on the ground realities are often overlooked by outsiders yet they may prove to be as important as political negotiations at the center debates in the un security council or hearings before an international criminal court central to pouligny s study is the key role played by local interlocutors her close analysis of several un interventions based on first hand observation of how local people intermingle with un soldiery and civilians sheds light on a neglected but crucial dimension of international peace enforcement book jacket
