in the boardroom executive and non executive directors must frequently make decisions balancing competing interests and conflicting moral norms with their actions impacting employees customers shareholders and society at large these decisions are not always understood frequently criticised and sometimes deemed immoral or unethical disbelief over the apparent mismatch between the actions of the company and the moral norms of wider society can damage the corporate reputation and lead to embarrassing u turns however despite the importance of these decisions and the interest they generate we rarely ask how these decisions are made what role do moral norms and moral identity have in the boardroom and how do companies sometimes interpret the moral norm so spectacularly poorly the picture revealed is of a decision making process that is neither simple nor morally black and white this eye opening book examines the role of moral judgement in the boardroom and how the actions and behaviours of directors in tackling moral dilemmas can lead to wildly different outcomes and consequences it includes forensic breakdowns of recent high profile boardroom decisions with alternative outcomes explored and assessed the detailed descriptions of the case studies include the moral dilemmas and the subsequent decisions of the directors of adidas bud light ajax yahoo g star and many others this book provides practical guidance for corporate decision makers looking to assign the right weight to conflicting moral norms and interests as well as all those seeking to gain more insight into the workings of the boardroom philosopher ross reed ph d refers to an eclectic array of thinkers in love and death an existential theory of addiction in particular existential philosophers soren kierkegaard 1813 1855 and jean paul sartre 1905

1980 according to dr reed addiction is usually the result of existential or life conditions rather than underlying physiological problems therefore it may involve not only drugs or alcohol but also relationships belief systems activities and even emotional states anything that can serve to deflect ones consciousness from reflectively apprehending the task of becoming oneself can serve as an object of addiction if the object is another person one might ask whether in fact addiction can masquerade as love is it possible to believe that you are in love with someone when in fact you are merely addicted to him or her in this creative and provocative work reed argues that sartres theory of love is in fact a theory of addiction evil remains a primary source of inquiry in contemporary literature of french expression even among its most secular writers in considering french speaking authors from france belgium the united states the maghreb and sub saharan africa this collection delineates a rich international perspective on some of the most disturbing events of our time each essay testifies to the urgency expressed in works of fiction to give an account of human catastrophes from the shoah and the rwandan genocide to the terrorist attacks of september 11 and the ongoing oppression of women in islamic nations themes underlying this volume include an investigation into the origins of evil its representations in writing and the ethical responsibilities of authors who write on human suffering contemporary fiction on evil confronts us with fundamental questions can evil be attributed to intentionality is evil subconscious or is it the result of impersonal forces which styles of writing are ethically appropriate or effective for depicting evil can we speak of a veritable poetics of evil shared by contemporary authors when does a literary text on evil become evil in providing informed and nuanced answers to these important questions the scholars engage in crucial theories of psychoanalysis post structuralism and post modernism address a number of issues theater war and memory in crisis explores how french and algerian dramatists have engaged with two traumatic events that continue to haunt france the german occupation and vichy government from 1940 to 1944 and the algerian war from 1954 to 1962 john ireland s investigation is guided by one central question can theater take on issues of violence war trauma and conflicted memory in a fundamentally different way from archival forms of culture such as memoirs narrative fiction and film throughout the twentieth century french cultural anthropologists classicists and social scientists repeatedly revisited links between archaic religious ritual the practice of sacrifice and greek tragedy as attempts to understand regulate and mitigate the violence of human conflict and war ireland argues that contemporary french playwrights dealing with war trauma and contested memory were influenced by aspects of this research that foregrounded the core virtues of oral culture presence and the present the here and now that also regulate theatrical performance that connection to the present encouraged dramatists and performance artists to make live historiographical contributions to reverberating unresolved history but also revived perennial therapeutic values of oral culture that evolved in ancient greece theater war and memory in crisis brings original readings of canonical authors like jean paul sartre jean genet bernard marie koltès and kateb yacine into dialogue with non canonical dramatists such as armand gatti liliane atlan and noureddine aba the primary aim of this study is to examine the dominant views on the subject of deterrence and the use of nuclear weapons compare them with each other and consider objections that have or might be made against them a second more substantive aim is to show that nuclear weapons and war fighting plans engender some disturbing moral dilemmas that call into question fundamental ways of thinking about morality and some of our common intuitions on the relation of intentions and actions deterrence and the crisis in moral theory points to a profound conflict in moral theory between the ideals of character and the moral claims of politics in this revisionist study young denies that adams was a reactionary critic of democracy and instead contends that he was an idealistic though often disappointed advocate of representative government young focuses on adams s belief that capitalist industrial development during the gilded age had debased american ideals and then turns to a careful study of adams s famous contrast of the unity of medieval society with the fragmentation of modern technological society book jacket
