there is scant research on the art produced under the congregation of the oratory of saint philip neri with the exception of a couple of general books focused primarily on major oratorian art pieces therefore this book of essays aims to discuss the art and culture produced by or associated with the oratorians by providing a broad overview focused especially on rarely investigated issues the authors focus on this very important artistic production commonly forgotten when compared with other religious productions of art by covering geographical areas spanning from sri lanka to mexico including italy spain the united kingdom india and brazil

this work is a large powerfully illustrated interdisciplinary natural sciences volume the first of its kind to examine the critically important nature of ecological paradox through an abundance of lenses the biological sciences taxonomy archaeology geopolitical history comparative ethics literature philosophy the history of science human geography population ecology epistemology anthropology demographics and futurism the ecological paradox suggests that the human biological and from an insular perspective successful struggle to exist has come at the price of isolating h. sapiens from life sustaining ecosystem services and far too much of the biodiversity with which we find ourselves at crisis level odds it is a paradox dating back thousands of years implicating millennia of human machinations that have been utterly ruinous to biological baselines those metrics are examined from numerous multidisciplinary approaches in this thoroughly original work which aids readers particularly natural history students who aspire to grasp the far reaching dimensions of the anthropocene as it affects every facet of human experience past present and future and the rest of planetary sentience with a preface by dr gerald wayne clough former secretary of the smithsonian institution and president emeritus of the georgia institute of technology foreword by robert gillespie president of the non profit population communication this book explores the principles of the display of art in the magnificent roman palaces of the early modern period focusing attention on how the parts function to convey multiple artistic social and political messages all within a splendid environment that provided a model for aristocratic residences throughout europe many of the objects exhibited in museums today once graced the interior of a roman baroque palazzo or a setting inspired by one in fact the very convention of a paintings gallery the mainstay of museums traces its ancestry to prototypes in the palaces of rome inside roman palaces the display of art was calibrated to an increasingly accentuated dynamism of social and official life activated by the moving bodies and the attention of residents and visitors display unfolded in space in a purposeful narrative that reflected rank honor privilege and intimacy with a contextual approach that encompasses the full range of media from textiles to stucco this study traces the influential emerging concept of a unified interior it argues that art history even the emergence of the modern category of fine art was worked out as much in the rooms of palaces as in the printed pages of vasari and other early writers on art this book looks at early modern representations both pictorial and literary of the animals surrounding adam and eve in the garden of eden at the dramatic moment of the fall beginning with albrecht dürer's engraving adam and eve 1504 and ending with rembrandt's etching adam and eve 1637 it explores the many manifestations of this
