this book focuses on public procurement for innovation public procurement for innovation is a specific demand side innovation policy instrument it occurs when a public organization places an order for a new or improved product to fulfill certain need sustainable economic growth is important due to its implications for the ecosystem natural resources and human development public health is also a key factor in developing a sustainable economy and it is a national asset because of its impact on labor supply and productivity health conditions depend on various factors such as environmental hazards availability of public facilities economic conditions pandemics etc green energy has an association with health as it guarantees a clean environment such measures are necessary to improve the public s mental and physical health leading to sustainable economic growth hence green energy governance and health are the potential avenues to enhance public health promoting sustainable economic growth good health guarantees higher economic growth as when more people are healthy and suitable to work the labor supply will increase and the economy grows likewise when health improvements are made the productivity of people improves because healthy people prove to be more active both physically and mentally when overall productivity improves the economy would also benefit however some factors affect public health including environmental degradation process green energy helps to improve overall health by the reduction in emission of dangerous gasses preservation of balance in terms of atmospheric gasses becomes possible through green energy and a clean environment resulting in fewer diseases and deaths making the economy grow by providing healthier people with higher productivity previous studies tried to investigate the channel through which public health can affect economic growth and added environmental pollution as a health problem however the literature sheds light on the importance of a clean environment for the economy by checking its impact on public health although there is a lack of investigation into how governance and green energy can influence public health which lead to increase the economic growth calling scholars to add this beneficial factor in future research this research topic focuses on sustainable economic growth through public health and green energy to add valuable information to the current knowledge in green energy environment public health as well as sustainable economic growth the main focus of research for this topic is emerging economies as these are the most vulnerable in terms of health and energy issues and economic growth sustainability it is assumed that the use of nonrenewable energy has a high environmental impact on health hence there should be some practical solution to improve health without interrupting the energy supply as a result scholars must hypothesize and test new solutions and this research topic is an attempt to do so topics covered by us would be governance green energy environment and sustainable economic growth this research topic provides an avenue for discussion as well as practical research on areas related to green energy public health sustainable environment sustainable economic growth and energy related issues of developed and developing economies extending experimentalist governance takes as its point of departure three observations about the current state of transnational regulation within and beyond the eu across a wide and expanding range of policy fields the eu has developed over the past 15 years a new architecture of experimentalist governance based on framework rule making and revision through recursive review of implementation experience in diverse local contexts through a variety of institutional mechanisms and channels the eu is actively seeking to extend its own internal rules norms standards and governance processes beyond the union s borders to third countries and the wider world in a number of major issue areas experimentalist regimes with similar architectural features to those within the eu appear to be developing on a global or transnational scale the book s goal is to explore both empirically and theoretically the relationship between these three contemporaneous trends and to assess their consequences for the eu s evolving role in transnational regulation the book tackles these questions about the external dimension of eu experimentalist governance and its relationship to broader trends in transnational regulation through in depth analysis of recent developments across a series of key policy domains by a distinguished interdisciplinary group of european and north american scholars the domains addressed include neighbourhood policy food safety gmos chemicals forestry competition finance data privacy disability rights crisis management justice and security this scoping paper analyzes the governance of trade in timber producing species regulated by cites the convention on international trade in endangered species of wild fauna and flora in light of the convention s increasing relevance as a tool to control transnational timber trade the cites regulatory framework is outlined as it relates to tree species along with the compliance mechanisms developed to build range state capacity for implementing trade controls in relation to tropical timber species and to apply sanctions to countries that fail to take recommended action to resolve implementation problems the study describes stricter domestic measures developed by consumer countries most notably the eu to control imports of cites listed species including trees as well as additional regulatory frameworks designed by importing countries to exclude illegal timber from their markets it also examines the implications for cites of regional economic integration given the convention s dependence on national border controls with a focus on experience in the eu and trends in asia key findings from three case studies of how cites has approached governance of trade in valuable timber producing species ramin gonystylus spp from asia afrormosia pericopsis elata from central and west africa and bigleaf mahogany swietenia macrophylla from latin america are presented and other potential case studies identified the study concludes by identifying priority areas where further research could contribute towards catalyzing positive change to strengthen the governance of transnational timber trade and ultimately towards the survival of tree species traded illegally and unsustainably
