covering her shifts but her brother's father in law is dying and he and his wife need Megan to help take care of their son with no other family to help Megan finds herself in over her head and overwhelmed she definitely has no time to fall in love but when Noah Thomas enters her life Megan suddenly finds herself dreaming of a Christmas that she doesn't have to do on her own. Noah Thomas has sworn off love ever since his wife walked out on him and then was killed in a tragic car accident. Noah has determined to punish himself for the rest of his life. His prosthetic leg, a result of the car accident, is a constant painful reminder of all that he has lost. Cold and hardened, Noah is less than friendly when he meets Megan Davis. In fact, he's perfectly content to push her out of his mind but something or someone keeps putting them together. Is it possible for Megan to let her guard down and lean on others for help and will Noah's heart melt so that he can find love again before either one can get what they want for Christmas? They have to reconcile with the God who never gives up on any of us no matter what we have done.

presents literary criticism on writers and illustrators for children and young adults. Critical essays are selected from leading sources including published journals, magazines, books, monographs, reviews, and scholarly papers.

No Easy Answers is the first comprehensive study of US sex offender registration, community notification, and residency restriction laws. Their public safety impact and the effect they have on former offenders and their families. It concludes the laws are poorly crafted and misguided, failing to protect children from sex crimes but making it nearly impossible for former offenders to rebuild their lives. In many states, everyone convicted of a sex crime must register and the requirement can last for life. The requirements are overbroad in scope and overlong in duration. As a result, there are more than 600,000 registered sex offenders, including individuals convicted of sexual sex between teenagers, prostitution, and public urination, as well as those who committed their only offenses decades ago. Unfettered public access to online sex offender registries exposes registrants to harassment, ostracism, and even violence, with little evidence that this form of community notification protects anyone from sexual violence. Residency restrictions prohibit former offenders from living within a designated distance anywhere from 500 to 2,500 feet from places where children gather. The restrictions have the effect of banishing former offenders from entire towns, forcing them to live far from home, families, jobs, and treatment, and hindering law enforcement supervision. The restrictions may have no impact on the likelihood of recidivism. Sex offender laws reflect public concern that children are at grave risk of sexual abuse by strangers who are repeat offenders. The real risks children face are quite different. Statistics demonstrate that most sexual abuse of children is committed by family members or persons known and often trusted by the victim and by someone who has not previously been convicted of a sex offense the laws also reflect the widely shared but erroneous belief that sex offenders continually repeat their offenses authoritative studies however indicate that three out of four adult offenders do not reoffend
