this 1976 book provides both a historical survey and a critical analysis of the literature in french from west and equatorial africa professor blair begins by discussing the social educational and political influences which led to the formation of the negritude movement and to a flowering of french african creative writing this historical approach is then complemented by a study of the different literary genres she traces the evolution of the first manifestations of literary activity in french by african writers the written folk tale fable and short story from the oral tradition of the indigenous culture and the eventual appearance of the novel with a legendary or historical theme the origins of french african drama are considered for the first time and the work of the minor poets analysed finally professor blair attempts a definition of the french african novel and studies examples from three major periods from the 1930s onwards toward the decolonization of the europhone african novel is a treatise on the problematics of language choice in europhone african literature vakunta s research is rooted in the notion that the postcolonial african fiction writer is at a crossroads of languages groping for linguistic re orientation using the prose of fiction of patrice nganang ahmadou kourouma mercedes fouda nazi boni and gabriel k fonkou as corpus he contends that postcolonial african fiction is an offshoot of a linguistic tinkering process that enables writers to tinker with the language of the ex colonizer in a deliberate attempt to divest indigenous writing of its hegemonic vestiges this collection is a study of african literature framed by the central and multi faceted idea of mother motherland mothertongue motherwit motherhood mothering looking at the paradoxical location of m other as both central and marginal whilst the volume stands as a sustained feminist analysis it engages feminist theory itself by showing how issues in feminism are in african literature recast in different and complex ways in this engaging humanist text a renowned senegalese philosopher explores the power of translation to bridge cultural divides informed by his own multicultural background african french and american souleymane bachir diagne interrogates the practice of translation in this thoughtful text although translation often produces a relationship of profound inequality between dominant and dominated languages it can also be a source of dialogue and exchange including in situations of asymmetry particularly regarding colonialism where the interpreter becomes a true cultural mediator to praise translation the language of languages is to celebrate its plurality and equality because to translate is to give hospitality in one language to what has been thought in another it is to create reciprocity a shared sense of humanity and to imagine a positive version of the tower of babel
