incidents in the life of a slave girl is an autobiography by a young mother and fugitive slave published in 1861 by L Maria Child who edited the book for its author Harriet Ann Jacobs. Jacobs used the pseudonym Linda Brent. The book documents Jacobs' life as a slave and how she gained freedom for herself and for her children. Jacobs contributed to the genre of slave narrative by using the techniques of sentimental novels to address race and gender issues. She explores the struggles and sexual abuse that female slaves faced on plantations as well as their efforts to practice motherhood and protect their children when their children might be sold away. Jacobs' book is addressed to white women in the North who do not fully comprehend the evils of slavery.

she makes direct appeals to their humanity to expand their knowledge and influence their thoughts about slavery as an institution incidents in the life of a slave girl is the immensely powerful autobiography of harriet jacobson who wrote under a pen name a feminist work she uses her experiences to state and restate her belief that though all unhappiness sprung from being a slave she had to endure worse being also a woman her experiences show that the only refuge and relief to be found were in other women and also that women were less able to attempt freedom when that would mean leaving their children behind her autobiography is the account of her struggle to achieve that freedom and respect and redefine herself her life is a testament to her grandmother's credo he that is willing to be a slave let him be a slave

i was born a slave but i never knew it till six years of happy childhood had passed away my father was a carpenter and considered so intelligent and skilful in his trade that when buildings out of the common line were to be erected he was sent for from long distances to be head workman on condition of paying his mistress two hundred dollars a year and supporting himself he was allowed to work at his trade and manage his own affairs his strongest wish was to purchase his children but though he several times offered his hard earnings for that purpose he never succeeded in complexion my parents were a light shade of brownish yellow and were termed mulattoes they lived together in a comfortable home and though we were all slaves i was so fondly shielded that i never dreamed i was a piece of merchandise trusted to them for safe keeping and liable to be demanded of them at any moment i had one brother william who was two years younger than myself a bright affectionate child published in 1861 one of few extant slave narratives written by a woman powerful portrayal of the brutality of slave life through the inspiring tale of one woman's dauntless spirit and faith reader be assured this narrative is no fiction i am aware that some of my adventures may seem incredible but they are nevertheless strictly true i have not exaggerated the wrongs inflicted by slavery on the contrary my descriptions fall far short of the facts i have concealed the names of places and given persons fictitious names i had no motive for secrecy on my own account but i deemed it kind and considerate towards others to pursue this course i wish i were more competent to the task i have undertaken but i trust my readers will excuse deficiencies in consideration of circumstances i was born and reared in slavery and i remained in a slave state twenty seven years since i have been at the north it has been necessary for me to work diligently for my own support and the education of my children this has not left me much leisure to make up for the loss of early opportunities to improve myself and it has compelled me to write these pages at irregular intervals whenever i could snatch an hour from household duties
