in today s globalized world traditions of a national self and a national other no longer hold this timely volume considers the stakes in our changing definitions of national boundaries in light of the unmistakable transformation of german and dutch societies examining how the literature of migration intervenes in public discourses on multiculturalism and including detailed analysis of works by the turkish german writers emine sevgi zdamer and feridun zaimoglu and the moroccan dutch writers abdelkader benali and hafid bouazza new germans new dutch offers crucial insights into the ways in which literature negotiates both difference and the national context of its writing disasters are as much cultural as natural phenomena for centuries news about catastrophic events has been disseminated through media such as chronicles pamphlets newspapers poems drawings and prints nowadays we are overwhelmed with news about the cataclysmic effects of recent forest fires floods and storms due to the ongoing climate crisis extreme weather events will likely have ever greater impacts on our lives this volume addresses cultural representations of catastrophes such as floods epidemics and earthquakes over the centuries in the past as now artists and authors try to make sense of disasters grasp their impact and communicate moral religious or political messages these creations reflect and shape how people learn and think about disasters that occur nearby or far away both in time and space the parallels between past and present underline how this book contributes to modern debates about cultural and creative strategies in response to disasters in the globalised world of today traditional definitions of national self and national other no longer hold the unmistakable transformation of german and dutch societies demands a thorough rethinking of national boundaries on several levels this book examines how literature of migration intervenes in public discourses on multiculturalism in germany and the netherlands epitomised in the strikingly parallel debates on the german leitkultur and the dutch multicultural drama in the year 2000 by juxtaposing detailed analyses of literary work by the turkish german writers emine sevgi özdamar and feridun zaimoglu and the moroccan dutch writers abdelkader benali and hafid bouazza new germans new dutch offers crucial insights into the specific ways in which this literature negotiates its national context of writing this book demonstrates how german literature of migration seeks alternative forms of community outside the national parameters whereas the dutch literature negotiates difference and re imagines dutchness within the national framework
