broadening the philosophical conversation about race and racism living alterities considers how people s racial embodiment affects their day to day lived experiences the lived experiences of individuals marked by race interacting with and responding to others marked by race and the tensions that arise between different spheres of a single person s identity drawing on phenomenology and the work of thinkers such as frantz fanon maurice merleau ponty and iris marion young the essays address the embodiment experiences of african americans muslims asian americans latinas jews and white americans the volume s focus on specific situations temporalities and encounters provides important context for understanding how race operates in people s lives in ordinary settings like classrooms dorm rooms borderlands elevators and families this book offers a new and externalist perspective in ignorance studies agnotology the epistemology of ignorance and more generally ignorance studies have grown to cover and explore different phenomena and subjects of research from known events in history and sociology of science to the investigation of ordinary reasoning and cognitive processing nonetheless although interested scholars have discussed ignorance phenomena and their impact on cognition most of them have only adopted an internalist perspective to approach this theme meanwhile even though externalist perspectives on cognition flourished in recent literature authors have paid little attention to the emerging field of ignorance studies ignorance has been generally left out from the inquiries on the extension of cognitive states cognitive processes and predictive reasoning thus in this volume we seek to merge the two growing areas of research and to fill this research gap fruitfully by addressing the uncomfortable themes that pertain to ignorance and related phenomena through an externalist perspective this book aims to provide much food for thoughts to cognitive scientists and philosophers alike enriching the current range and reach of both ignorance studies and externalist approaches to cognition this book draws on merleau ponty s phenomenology to develop new and promising solutions to contemporary debates about perception in providing an extension and defense of merleau ponty s account of perceptual content and of the relation between perception and the world it demonstrates the value of merleau ponty s insights for philosophy of perception today the author focuses on two main topics the contents and the nature of perception in the first half of this book the author tackles debates about the content of perception namely what sorts of properties or features of the world reveal themselves to us in perception and in what modes drawing on merleau ponty s description of perceptual sense the author argues that perception has a unique kind of content which cannot be adequately described in terms of sensations or concepts he then shows how this account of perceptual sense can clarify debates about the richness of perceptual content including whether we can perceive moral properties in the second half he turns to the nature of perception here he argues that merleau ponty s account of perceptual intentionality makes available a powerful combination of the core insights of two main contemporary approaches to this question realism and intentionalism the author shows how this combination can be developed defends it from objections and explains how it is equipped to deal with problems posed by the existence of illusions and hallucinations merleau ponty and contemporary philosophy of perception will appeal to scholars and advanced students working on phenomenology and the philosophy of perception
