second peter is full of christological language scholars have often overlooked the christological richness as they have focused heavily on the issues of eschatology and authorship the uniqueness of the son from the father as well as the divinity of jesus are at the forefront of the short epistle further ernst kasemann famously criticized 2 peter for being void of christology and the cross and thus the gospel the author analyzes the christology of 2 peter particularly as it relates to the petrine view of the divinity of jesus and the distinctness and uniqueness of the son from the father this study examines the christological depth in these key areas as a response to critics like kasemann kasemann first looked into the eschatological arguments of 2 peter and claimed he was not able to find any christological orientation the student of 2 peter must not look through eschatology to see the rich christology which fills the verses of the epistle however when the reader examines the christological language and themes within 2 peter he she is faced with a beautiful portrayal of jesus and the father john and philosophy a new reading of the fourth gospel offers a stoic reading of the fourth gospel especially its cosmology epistemology and ethics it works through the gospel in narrative sequence providing a philosophical narrative reading in each section of the gospel troels engberg pedersen raises discusses philosophical questions he compares john with paul in philosophy and mark in narrative to offer a new reading of the transmitted text of the fourth gospel of these two profiles the narrative one is strongly influenced by the literary critical paradigm moreover by attending carefully to a number of narratological features one may come to see that the transmitted text in fact hangs together much more coherently than scholarship has been willing to see the other profile is specifically philosophical scholarship has been well aware that the fourth gospel has what one might call a philosophical dimension engberg pedersen shows that throughout the gospel contemporary stoicism works better to illuminate the text this pertains to the basic cosmology and cosmogony that is reflected in the text to the epistemology that underlies a central theme in it regarding different types of belief in jesus to the ethics that is introduced fairly late in the text when jesus describes how the disciples should live once he has himself gone away from them and more several myths about plato's work are decisively challenged by catherine rowett the idea that plato agreed with socrates about the need for a definition of what we know the idea that he set out to define justice in the republic the idea that knowledge is a kind of true belief or that plato ever thought that it might be something like that the idea that knowledge proper is propositional and that the theaetetus was plato's best attempt to define knowledge as a species of belief and that it only failed due to his incompetence instead rowett argues that plato was replacing the failed methods of socrates including his attempt to find a definition or single common factor and that he replaced those methods with methods derived from geometry including methods that involve inference from shadows to their originals a method which rowett calls the iconic method as a result we should see that plato is presenting the knowledge that is acquired as non propositional and pictorial in nature and that it is to be identified not with knowledge of facts nor of objects but of types qua types types that stand to the tokens that are used in our enquiry as original to shadow the book includes detailed studies of the meno republic and theaetetus and argues that the insights that plato brings about the nature of conceptual knowledge its importance in underpinning all other activities and about the notion of truth as it applies to conceptual competence are significant and should be taken seriously as a corrective to areas in which current analytic philosophy has lost its way
