showing how museum practices shed new light on literary form how and why do books deploy objects in order to narrate the past to answer this question emma bond sifts through collections of objects stored in boxes drawers baskets and displayed on shelves in contemporary texts by authors such as valeria luiselli maaza mengiste orhan pamuk and olga tokarczuk and interprets them using a framework of museum practices these practices which include collection curation conservation and display have helped to turn real life museums into three dimensional narrative spaces curating worlds museum practices in contemporary literature shows how we can use this same set of practices to shed light on literary form itself how stories are created shaped and communicated harnessing museum practices as an innovative lens for critical interpretation bond provides a fresh theoretical framework to engage with the meanings of object collections in literature and to make sense of the lives and afterlives of things today this book presents a synthesised framework for analysing archival poetics in multimodal literature examining case studies from twenty first century american fiction towards elucidating the archival turn in contemporary literature more broadly ivansson turns her focus on multimodal archival fiction here understood as works which engage with archival practices of collecting and organising both verbal text and visual inclusions of fictional and factual archival material such as photographs sketches notes and newspaper clippings the volume brings together work from multimodality cognitive stylistics and narratology with archival studies to demonstrate how contemporary archival fiction engages with archival themes through multimodal design case studies include works from barbara hodgson leanne shapton valeria luiselli and jacob garbe and aaron a reed the selected examples allow for a detailed exploration of how to analyse the multimodal composition and reader experience of archival poetics furthermore these case studies also elucidate how such a framework can be applied more broadly to the analysis of fictional works thematically and structurally concerned with the archive or those that grapple with such areas of interest in contemporary research as materiality bookishness and ontological ambiguity this volume will appeal to students and scholars in multimodality stylistics american literature and literary studies this timely interdisciplinary volume brings academic research into dialogue with women who have experienced the asylum process activists and ngos it reveals the obstacles that women are confronted with during asylum processes when relaying their testimonies that involve violence women s voices are marginalized and often erased because of multiple barriers within refugee status determination procedures and asylum and refugee reception systems conditions need to change so that women can voice their testimonies and know that they will be listened to and heard and that their voices and experiences will count within asylum processes and lead to effective protection this book is a site of knowledge exchange between women survivors and activists and policy makers it contains first hand accounts of the asylum processes by women survivors and activists and offers examples of how the arts and humanities might open up avenues of expression and testimony for women seeking asylum through practices of co production creating safe spaces of representation for women to talk about their lived experiences of violence and exile but also and crucially resistance and resilience
