literature as an art form evolving intermedial literary landscape brings together sixteen scholarly contributions that explore literature's ongoing transformation across media cultures and technologies. This anthology traces the dynamic interplay between literature and visual, sonic, performative, and algorithmic forms, ranging from illuminated manuscripts and oral traditions to digital texts and anime. Rejecting the notion of literature as a fixed verbal art, the chapters highlight its status as a transmedial, evolving practice shaped by and shaping the environments in which it is situated. Each essay examines how literature migrates across modalities, revealing it as a mutable process of techno-poiesis. Together, they offer a compelling vision of literature not as an autonomous artefact but as a fluid cultural phenomenon whose conditions of existence are inseparable from intermedial exchange.

The essay argues that the axiomatic definition of the tectonic poetics of construction as it has been advocated in recent decades is focusing too one-sidedly on architecture's tangible materiality and undermines the capability of architecture to contain representational values and to hold civilizing meaning.

although few philosophers agree about what it is for something to be art most if not all agree on one thing art must be in some sense intention dependent art and art attempts is about what follows from taking intention dependence seriously as a substantive necessary condition for something s being art christy mag uidhir argues that from the assumption that art must be the product of intentional action along with basic action theoretic account of attempts goal oriented intention directed activity follows a host of sweeping implications for philosophical enquiry into the nature of art and its principal relata such as authorship art forms and art ontology e g an informative distinction between art non art and failed art that any viable theory of art must capture a far more productive minimal framework for authorship not only capable of systematically addressing issues of collective authorship appropriation etc but also one according to which artists just are authors a coherent and structurally precise account of art forms based upon the relation between artists artworks and the sortal properties thereof a unified and far less metaphysically suspect ontology of art according to which if there are such things as artworks then artworks must be concrete things ultimately mag uidhir aims neither to propose nor to defend any particular precise answer to the question what is art instead he shows the ways in which taking intention dependence seriously as a substantive necessary condition for being art can be profoundly revelatory and perhaps even radically revisionary as to the scope and limits of what any particular precise answer to such a question could viably be
