aristotle s categories had an unparalleled influence on the history of metaphysical speculation despite its influence however two fundamental questions remain to this day unanswered 1 how did aristotle generate his list of categories and 2 what is the relationship between aristotle s categories and his other great metaphysical system hylomorphism in this book paul studtmann develops and defends an interpretation that offers a unified and striking answer to both questions aristotle s system of categories is systematically derivable from hylomorphism which in turn is derivable from general theses about the nature of being the measurement of nervous habits in normal children was first published in 1929 certain nervous habits such as thumb sucking nail biting and others are among the common problems of child behavior a study of their occurrence in some seven hundred normal children on the basis of an inventory is here reported intensive study is given to the relation of such habits to family history habit formation nutritional status fatigue imitation age and sex the material should prove of interest to parents physicians psychologists and teachers one of the significant contributions is the development of a method of measurement which is applicable to any observable trait and which may in the future throw light upon many problems now difficult of solution
