paolo favilli provides both students and scholars with an original reading of themes and issues found in karl marx s das kapital and its connections with present day challenges by way of continuous cross referencing between present and past favilli demonstrates claims that the scientific status of das kapital advanced by countless texts since its original publication are themselves deeply imbued by the spirit of the times if in 1963 jean paul sartre could write that marxism was the unsurpassable philosophical horizon of our times what could make an undergraduate student today consider such a claim plausible informed by the latest research on marxist theory and decades teaching the philosophy of history favilli employs a didactic approach stimulating student engagement and learning opportunities in the classroom this approach allows for a better understanding of relationship between the present and the multiple temporalities that characterise and periodise the contemporary era what follows is a critique of the contemporary academy for its hangover of post 1989 nuovismo cult of novelty and inability to make the proper distinctions between marxism as party state the works of karl marx and marxism as an object of history this led to the spectacle where after 1989 those who had spent most of their careers as marxist hued scholars not only abandoned this identity but also spurned any recognition that marx and marxism were worthwhile objects of inquiry this book was first published in italian as a proposito de il capitale il lungo presente e i miei studenti corso di storia contemporanea milan francoangeli 2021 this english translation includes a new foreword by the author

this book analyzes how colonial history is depicted in post war textbooks worldwide from the mid 19th century to the 1960s 70s it uses an interdisciplinary approach to explore portrayals in former colonizer and colonized countries focusing on collective memory popular culture and academic knowledge this book is the first epoch spanning study on jewish participation in the italian women s movement focussing in a transnational perspective on the experience of italian jewish protagonists in liberal italy during the first world war and the fascist dictatorship until 1945 drawing on ego documents contemporary journals and jewish community archives as well as records by the police and public authorities it examines the tensions within the emancipation process between participation and exclusion the book argues that the racial laws from 1938 did not represent the sudden end of an idyllic integration but rather the climax of a long term development social marginalization the persecution of jewish rights and the assault on jewish lives during fascism are analysed distinctly from the perspective of jewish women in spite of their significant influence on the transnational orientation of the italian women s movement their emancipation as women and jews remained incomplete
