One of the foremost African writers of our time who dispelled the silence between colonial and feminist discourses by talking back, Bessie Head at last gets her due in this first book-length comprehensive study of her work. This book locates Head's unquestionable importance in the canon of African literature. Author Huma Ibrahim argues that unless we are able to look at the merging of women's sexual and linguistic identity with their political and gendered identity, the careful configurations created in Head's work will elude us. Ibrahim offers a series of thoughtful readings informed by feminist, diasporan, postcolonial and poststructuralist insights and concerns. She identifies a theme she calls 'exilic consciousness' – the desire to belong – and traces its manifestations through each phase of Head's work, showing how women's talk, a marginalized commodity in the construction of Southern Africa, is differently embodied and evaluated. Bessie Head's works are frequently featured in courses in African literature, Third World literature and fiction writing, but there is little critical material on them. Ibrahim offers readings of Head's novels When Rain Clouds Gather, Maru and A Question of Power, as well as the collections Tales of Tenderness and Power, A Collector of Treasures, A Woman Alone, autobiographical writings and the plays The Cardinals, The Histories, Serowe, Village of the Rain Wind and A Bewitched Crossroad, and her letters to Robert Vigne, collected in A Gesture of Belonging. In Head's exploration of oppressed people, especially women and those in exile, Ibrahim finds startling insights into institutional power relations. Head not only subverts Western hegemonic notions of the Third World woman but offers a critique of postcoloniality.
