This book brings together research on second language pragmatics in the underexplored context of EFL primary classrooms, presenting studies from Croatia, Cyprus, Germany, Norway, Spain, and the Netherlands. The book offers a rich exploration of different topics such as learners' pragmatic performance, awareness, and development; learners' and teachers' views on pragmatic instruction; and investigations concerning material use and lesson planning. The studies feature a range of data sources including animated films, arts-based instruction, classroom discourse, narrated picture-based tasks, questionnaires, and interviews, introducing the reader to a wealth of opportunities for young learners. This book allows readers to explore the inner workings of a hybrid class from the perspectives of two instructors with different pedagogical orientations, from the students' perspectives, including learning outcomes and immediately practical teaching tools. The authors meet the challenge of how to preserve pedagogy and content while making good use of digital tools and online opportunities. Language teachers at the secondary and postsecondary level will enjoy the authors' first-person narrative of the creation of a pedagogically sound hybrid course, practical examples from their courses, as well as student learning outcomes and feedback on the various technological activities. During a year-long study of the authors' hybrid courses, they used a mixed methods design to answer these questions: How does a hybrid course change our teaching? How does the hybrid course affect student learning experiences? What technology-based activities are most effective in our hybrid course?
