over many years of observing deeply spiritual women i have concluded that they have something in common whether or not they make religious retreats they are able to find spiritual spa refreshment in everyday living somehow they have discovered ways to spiritualize their mundane tasks i m convinced i ve been overlooking an important source of spiritual refreshment one i call the spiritual spa at this spa we can learn how to spiritually relax and shut out the voices in our heads so that even changing diapers can refresh us and teach us after all it is those daily activities that provide clues to the mystery of who we are why we are here and why we are in this place at this moment in history contemporary debates about the concept of human rights are characterized at their core by difficulty negotiating the tension between the universal and the particular one of the central challenges of an increasingly global society is to determine how we can affirm universal human rights while respecting the distinctive traditions of individual cultures to address this challenge clinton timoth curle turns to john humphrey an oft ignored canadian who is chiefly responsible for the united naitons declaration of human rights using humphry s journals as a starting point curle illustrates how humphry was profoundly influenced by the philosophy of henry bergson and in fact regarded the declaration as a kind of legal transliteration of bergson s philosophy of the open society curle goes on to provide a careful analysis of bergon s philosophy and to establish an affinity between humphry s vision of the contemporary human rights project and the greek patristic tradition curle concludes that the universal declaration of human rights understood in a bergsonian context provides us with a way to affirm in the modern context that there is a ground to human fellowship which is transcendent and which offers a basis to establish a universal ethics without a radical homogenization of cultures
